14 NATION'S FLAGS FLUTTERING MORE PLACIDLY AT NATO

Now Bear Less Symbolical Semblance to Political Convention Banners

ATMOSPHERE CHANGE

Supreme Headquarters Is Assuming More of A Military Character

The article that follows inaugurates a new Courier weekly feature called "Memo to America." Each week, hereafter, noted foreign correspondents the world over will send an informal, letter-style "memo" to readers of the Courier telling them of interesting behind-the-headlines doings in the various countries in which these correspondents live and work. Sometimes these memos will deal with big news, but more often than not with "little" news—the little things of interest to peoples everywhere which under the pressure of events don't always come to light. Each day that passes makes the world smaller and makes more people our neighbors. These "memos" are designed to help you know better your neighbors across the seas, and the Americans living abroad. Today's memorandum comes from Paris and sheds interesting light on how the change in commands at SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe) has affected that vital "HQ."

"MEMO FROM PARIS"
By Kingsbury Smith
(European General Manager, International News Service)

Flags of the 14 NATO nations towering over the entrance to SHAPE headquarters outside Paris seem to flutter more placidly these days. They bear less symbolical semblance to the banners of a political convention than they did a couple of weeks ago.

There is a change of atmosphere, too, inside the sprawling, one-story

FIRST LEVITTOWN SCHOOL

This architect's drawing shows what the first school in Levittown will look like, it's site plan and details of the main entrance. It is Bristol township's John Fitch elementary school, now being planned for the new community that is expected to grow to 70,000 in three years. The "self-contained" 600-pupil building, designed around the needs of the modern curriculum and embodying accepted advances in school architecture, will occupy a 24-acre site centering on the first section of Levittown together with swimming pool, ball field and playground areas. It will have 20 all-purpose classrooms, each with direct access to an adjacent outdoor teaching area. Layout and equipment in each of the 22-by-37½-foot classrooms allow for simultaneous work in three related activities, like art, science and woodworking or the three R's. Each room will have its own toilet, storage and wardrobe facilities. Other features of the school include a 40-by-60-foot auditorium-gymnasium, a 240 seat cafeteria, complete kitchen, administrative offices and music practice room. Utility installations allow for eventual expansion of the school to 800-pupil capacity. Construction is to start this summer and partial occupancy is expected by late fall. The school was designed by the Philadelphia architectural firm of Howell Lewis Shay in cooperation with Bristol township school authorities and Bucks County administrator Dr. Charles H. Boehm.

FORESEE "PROUD NEW TITLE" FOR PHILIP

Will Shortly Be Promoted From Lt. Commander To Admiral's Rank

COMPREHENSIVE MIND

This third and last article of a series on Prince Philip shows now Elizabeth's husband can and is molding the spirit of England's new Elizabethan Age.

By Fred Doerflinger
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 12 — (INS) — Palace sources believe that Queen Elizabeth II will create a "proud new title and dignity" for her versatile consort, Prince Philip.

The Queen is said to frown on the idea of imitating Queen Victoria by naming her husband "Prince Conosrt" like his predecessor Prince Albert.

Rumors are circulating that in her devotion to Philip, Elizabeth may even try to have him crowned "King Consort" at her coronation in Westminster Abbey next year.

But responsible court and political authorities believe the Queen has a title like "Prince Royal," or "Prince of Great Britain," or "Prince of the Commonwealth" in mind.

They also feel the Queen may not wait until her coronation to confer the new title on Philip and settle his precedence officially.

Sources close to the Queen say that she is "just a little impatient" to see Philip established in his "rightful position" as the Nation's First Gentleman.

There is no doubt that Elizabeth will by official act elevate her husband to first place among the men of her realm. Her intentions

OVER 700 SCOUTS AT ANNUAL CAMPOREE

Howard G. Krupp Gives The Address of Welcome To the Visitors

PATROLS ERECT CAMP

WASHINGTON CROSSING, June 12—Over 700 Scouts and Scouters of the Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, participated in the largest camporee in the history of the Council, here, last week-end.

Howard G. Krupp, of the Park Commission, gave the address of welcome on Saturday evening at the Freedom Campfire at which time he stressed the importance of Scout training for the boy of today. A plaque was presented to him by the Scout Commissioner, Francis P. Kemmerer.

It was an inspiring sight as the 123 Patrols set up their camps on

BACK TO TWEED AND BURR WITH IKE!

There can be only one explanation for General Eisenhower not having disavowed the strategy and tactics being used to try to win the Republican nomination for him.

That reason is the indisputable fact that when it comes to politics, General Eisenhower is a babe in arms. He is most literally "in the hands of his friends." He himself has made no bones about this point. He seems to consider it somewhat a feather in his cap that he leaves the politicking to his buddies, and himself deals only with the high-level philosophizing.

The result is that corrupt political practices which most reform elements thought were permanently buried long ago have been resurrected. Methods not unlike those of Aaron Burr, the first man who tried to buy the presidency with patronage, and of boss Tweed, who was almost a genius at manipulating his own party and a "captive" opposition as well, have been put back into effect.

Not only that, but these debased methods are being eloquently and noisily defended by those who ought to have better taste and judgment.

In brief, what the pro-Eisenhower camp has been doing is to engineer it so that the Democrats would have more to say about the Republican nomination than the Republicans would.

This subversive effort, wholly indefensible as a matter of clean and high-standard political ethics, blew up to a tempest in Texas. But it has been under way all spring.

Of the essential facts there can be no dis-

PICNICKERS PREPARE FOR SUMMER SEASON

Sunday Schools of Bristol List Dates and Places For Outings

SOME, LATE SUMMER

Girls and boys and even adults of the Sabbath schools in Bristol are eager with anticipation for their annual church school picnics. In many instances the sites have been chosen, parks within several miles of the borough; and the dates set.

Some are chartering buses, and private cars will augement these.

The programs will be dependent upon what type of park is chosen. Where there are amusement concessions such will attract the attention of the picnickers for a good part of the day. At other parks, baseball games, sports and races will hold sway.

The big event, in all cases, will be the picnic dinner, complete with the usual potato salad, sliced ham, possibly fried chicken, sliced tomatoes, yummy, golden lemon butter; crisp potato chips, bright-green pickles; colorful olives; flaky

MARTIN PREDICTS SWEEPING G. O. P. VICTORY IN FALL

Capacity Audience Hears Senator Indict Truman Administration

RAPS HEAVY SPENDING

Honesty is One of The Vital Issues in Campaign, He Says

(Special to The Courier)

SHAWNEE - ON - THE - DELAWARE, June 12—A sweeping Republican victory next fall was predicted by Pennsylvania's U. S. Senator Edward Martin here last night in an address at the annual June rally of the Monroe Council of Republican Women.

A capacity audience heard the former Pennsylvania Governor scathingly indict the Truman Administration for the widespread corruption which has been exposed by Congress and allowed to fester by the Chief Executive, as well as for the reckless dissipation of the assets and resources of the American people.

In his address Senator Martin said:

"One of the vital issues of the 1952 campaign is the issue of honesty against dishonesty. It is an issue on which every American must take a stand.

"The American people have not forgotten the bribery of public officials to influence R. F. C. loans,

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Allied Troops Gouge Out Two Wedges in Red Lines

Seoul—Tank-paced Allied troops, supported by jet fighter-bombers, gouged out two wedges in Red lines today after launching a bold attempt to blunt massive enemy strength in North Korea's iron triangle area. Some of the year's bloodiest fighting raged through the day and was still going on in at least one sector at dusk Thursday as Allied raiders pressed their thrusts behind flame-throwing, shell-spitting tanks. The raiding teams drove wedges into the fringes of Chinese front line build-ups on both sides of the base of the iron triangle—west of Chorwon on the western front and southwest of Kumsong in the center.

Warns of Possible Russian Victory if American Support of U. N. is Withdrawn

United Nations, N. Y.—A former spokesman for the U. S. United Nations delegation warned today that the Soviet Union will gain "a tremendous victory" if American support of the UN is withdrawn. Porter McKeever, newly-appointed director of the Chicago council on foreign relations, assailed the Truman administration for by-passing the UN on the Marshall Plan and NATO.

Russians Answer Sharp U. S. Protest

Berlin—The Russians in Berlin today answered the recent sharp American protest over the shooting of a U. S. soldier by a communist policeman. Contents of the note were expected to be released shortly. Pvt. Wilfred R. Chenevert, of North Grafton, Mass., was grazed on the left leg by a bullet June 4, while carrying out a routine jeep patrol near the border between the U. S. sector of Berlin and the Soviet zone.

PENFIELD AND BELARDLEY RESIDENTS COMPLAIN TO COMMISSIONERS ABOUT DRAINAGE CONDITIONS IN THEIR AREAS

Meeting in Edgely Fire Co. Station Reaches High Pitch—Penfield Tract Residents Claim No Families There Have Dry Cellars — Heated Discussion Over Conditions at Belardley Tract—With Session Getting Out of Order, Group Withdraws to Appoint Spokesmen.

EDGELY, June 12 — Presided over by George Sottung, President, and attended by all of the commissioners, the Bristol township board of commissioners held its monthly meeting last evening in Edgely Fire Co. station.

After reading of the minutes by Elwood Britton, secretary, committee reports were given. Eugene Stutz reported that some new roads have been started and may be finished in a month. Oscar Booz, health commissioner, stated that local beach waters are being investigated to make certain they are safe for swimmers. In particular, Silver Lake is to be tested. Mr. Houser, Bath road, suggested that some check be made on glass littering Silver Lake beaches, and the commissioners will check on this.

The meeting reached a high pitch when two groups of residents presented problems pertaining to their localities. The first group represented families in the Penfield section along Newport road. Their complaint concerned drainage, which they claim has been so poor that no families in the area have dry cellars. George Sottung stated that apparently the drainage pipes had not originally been installed properly. William S. Erwin, township engineer, will make a survey of this condition and report the results of his findings.

The second group, which comprised the majority of about 75 people who attended the meeting, caused heated discussion when they complained about the swamp condition at the Belardley tract along Rogers road. Because the meeting was getting out of order, the Belardley residents withdrew to another room to organize and appoint a committee to represent them. When they returned to the meeting, they had selected Arnold Ody, Martin Needham, and Frank Steinberger, all of Snowden avenue, to accompany Fred Hibbs, a commissioner, to contact Lawrence Monroe, attorney, about what can be done to relieve the "dreadful situation" that is claimed to exist with the swamp. Erwin will also make a survey at once of this problem so that he can report shortly on his recommendations.

Residents of the Belardley tract were informed they may receive direct mail service if they organize

TO ASK BIDS WHEN MONEY IS AVAILABLE

Expect Congress to Make Hill-Burton Funds Available For Hospital

AUDIT IS COMPLETED

Progress reported at the executive committee meeting of the Lower Bucks County Hospital was made known today through the Public Relations Committee Chairman. The report states:

Hill-Burton Funds: Appropriation has not yet been made. However, the Department of Welfare feels reasonably sure it will be passed by Congress before they recess. Assurance has been given that the Lower Bucks County Hospital stands at the top of the list and therefore the money will be forthcoming if Congress makes the appropriation. As soon as this money is definitely available, the plans can go out for competitive bidding.

Audit of Accounts: Herr and Herr submitted an audit on May 1, of the hospital accounts and this report will soon be published.

Selection of Hospital Staff: The staff committee is acknowledging the applications already received and are checking their references. It is hoped that a considerable number of applications will be received during the coming month. To aid in sifting these applications the staff committee has been assured of help from the following prominent medical men: G. Morris Pierson, M. D., University of Pennsylvania, General Medicine; Thaddeus Montgomery, M. D., Jefferson-

PEACE PIGEONS?

Jacques Duclos, perhaps the prize internationalist communist big shot outside the iron curtain, was placed behind a different sort of iron curtain, courtesy of the Paris police. They arrested him in the midst of one of the violent riots set off by the communists in Paris.

In Duclos' car the police found two carrier pigeons, a radio tuned to police broadcasts directing riot squads, a blackjack and a loaded revolver. It looked as if he was masterminding the riots. The charge against Duclos: Illegal possession of the gun.

Duclos is a member of the French parliament and leader of the communist delegation in that body. The communists are the largest party in France today. He would have a good claim to the post of premier, except for the fact that communists are excluded from the cabinet.

Five years ago, with some misgivings, Premier Ramadier ran the risk of kicking the communists out of the cabinet, and they have been excluded ever since. If Ramadier had not taken the action he did, France might have gone the way of Czechoslovakia.

But Duclos is a power far outside the borders of France. In 1945, it was an article by Duclos, translated and reprinted in the New York Daily Worker, that caused Earl Browder to be ousted as head of the communist party in the U. S. A few years later Duclos set off a series of public statements by communists in non-communist countries all over the world, who followed his lead in declaring—one after another—that in a war between their own nations and Russia they would be for Russia.

The riots Duclos was involved in constituted a hate-America demonstration. The United States has been aiding France with billions of dollars. Russia doesn't like that, obviously, and French communists were again showing that their first loyalty is to Russia. They were showing it with spiked clubs, blackjacks, bottles and metal folding chairs.

News reports omitted details about the pigeons found in Duclos' car. One thing is certain: They weren't doves of peace.

If elected President, Harold Stassen says he would eliminate crime by appointing two women to his cabinet. Apparently he thinks the job would be a little stiff for one.

With strikes and politics erupting throughout the nation, this summer promises to be anything but prosaic.

Because of a shortage some of the more important types of ammunition are being rationed in Korea, where the prelude to the war a former Defense Secretary said this country could win before breakfast is being fought.

Saturday and prepared their meals. The Scouts were camped in the concentration area where Washington's troops gathered on Christmas night in 1776 to embark on their crossing to the Battle of Trenton and defeat of the British troops.

During the afternoon on Saturday the Scouts hiked to the various points of interest in the Park including the Embarkation Point and the original Picture of Washington Crossing the Delaware on display in the Washington Crossing Methodist Church.

After supper an inspiring retreat ceremony was held at which time the patrols and troops assembled at the Flag for the lowering of the flag.

At the campfire presentations were made and various Council Officials were introduced including George S. Hobensack, president; Dr. A. J. Strathie, Camping and Activities Chairman; and members of the Executive Board.

Field Executives William J. Gates, Jr., and Ralph J. Stoudt, Jr., were in charge of the campfire. The Scouts who attended the National Jamboree at Valley Forge and the Camp Staff for 1952 had a part in the program.

Church service was conducted by Rev. Harold Hallam of the Washington Crossing Church. Scouts of Catholic Faith attended St. George's R. C. Church in Titusville of which Father McLaughlin is the priest.

During Sunday morning the districts presented demonstration areas where cooking, fire lighting, signal tower building, pack rack making and other skills were demonstrated.

A self-judging method was used during the Camporee with each troop and patrol judging itself in the job being done. Patrol scores were determined by the Scouts participating. The Central Bucks Fire and Rescue Unit under direction of Ralph Wasser and A. T. Clark were set up in the headquarters to care for emergencies.

The Camporee was the most successful ever conducted by the Council. The cooperation of the Washington Crossing Park Commission and police and Pennsylvania State Police aided greatly in the success of the Camporee.

The Camping & Activities Committee of the Council, Dr. A. J. Strathie, Chairman, planned and carried out the program at Washington Crossing.

The Scout Executive of the Council, Raymond W. Hoxworth, and his staff with the District Commissioners assisted the Camping Committee in carrying out the details of the Camporee.

The members of St. James Episcopal school will enjoy a picnic at Willow Grove Park on the 14th of June.

Travelling also to Willow Grove next Saturday will be the scholars of First Baptist Sunday School.

Bristol Methodist Sunday School scholars will participate in a picnic Saturday, July 26th, at Clementon Lake Park, N. J.

The Zion Lutheran Sunday School picnic will be held July 19, at Cadwalader Park, Trenton, N. J.

The church buses will operate on the regular Sunday School schedule when the picnic of Calvary Baptist Sunday School is held Saturday, June 28th, at Green Grove, Washington Crossing Park, N. J.

The annual Fourth of July picnic of the Bristol Christain Church, Wood and Walnut streets, is being postponed so that the Rev. Anthony A. Marinacci may take his congregation to a camp meeting at Malaga, N. J. The Rev. Mr. Marinacci expects that the picnic will be held the following week, although the date is not definite.

Some of the other church schools are undecided as to time and place of picnics, but anticipate such for mid-summer or later.

Commissioner Addresses Taxpayers' Group

EDDINGTON, June 12—Bensalem Taxpayers Association held a meeting on Monday evening in Otremski's hall.

John Walsh, county commissioner, introduced General Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the Senate from Lehigh and Bucks counties.

Mr. Walsh explained the 1953 assessments. He told of the need of a new court house in Doylestown, a new jail wing, an addition to the poor house, and a home for juveniles who are now placed in foster homes. It was suggested to mark "Candidates Night" at a future meeting having both Republican and Democratic candidates present.

bstetrics; Eugene P. Pendergrass, D., University of Pennsylvania, Roentgenology; Charles Brown, M. D., Hahnemann-Dean of Medicine; Damon B. Pfeiffer, M. D., Abington (John Hopkins) General Surgery; Max M. Strumia, M. D., Bryn Mawr, Pathology. When an adequate number of applications are received, they will be sorted by departments, listed and forwarded to the above men. The Bucks County medical men as well as the Staff Committee of the Board of Directors will be present at the meeting for a discussion of the applicants.

Fire Protection: Some of the fire protection facilities for hospitals are specified by the State Hospital Code. The Factory Insurance Association engineers have agreed to go over our plans and inform us just what protection is needed in order that we may be covered by them. In order to obtain the most economical and satisfactory solution to the fire protection problem, the aid of James E. Harris, Hospital President, who has been in the insurance field all his life, has been enlisted.

Sewer System: Since the entire hospital plumbing system depends on the proper sewer facilities and since the architects must have accurate knowledge of the sewer system to complete the plumbing phase in the drawings, all matters pertaining to the sewer line and system are being actively followed through at this time by the Building Committee.

Hospital Site: The sign designating the hospital site is now erected on that site, through the courtesy of Fairless Steel Co., Morrisville.

Certificate of Solicitation: Present certificate expired June 4th. Decision was made to immediately renew due to the fact that places of employment have set up in their indoctranation program a system including hospital deduction.

3 Teachers Hired By Bensalem Directors

Robert Vansant presided at the meeting in the high school building, here, with only one absentee, Harry West.

The directors, under "school plant," heard report that all work on grading and seeding on the additional land, formerly part of the Bowman tract, is completed.

The board authorized purchase of gang mowers, and of new curtains for the stage in the high school auditorium.

Also authorized was the employment of an individual to plan the engineering work for playground at Trevose. Advertising of bids for a second well on the high school site, Street road, was authorized. One well was dug some time ago, but more water is necessary it was pointed out.

The architect reported working drawings on the high school are about 20 per cent completed.

Three teachers were elected: James Fischer, of Boiling Springs, as commercial teacher in the high school; Mrs. Beverly Whitney, Andalusia, returning to the high school after absence of a year; John Ware, of York, as an elementary teacher.

Census enumerators will begin their task on June 16th. Two teachers will care for this work.

The board adopted the school calendar for the coming term, presented by superintendent William Shellenberger. It also accepted proposal of F. A. Simons Bros. for furnishing coal. All bills were ordered paid.

P. T. A. AWARDS TO PUPILS

At Jefferson avenue school this morning a number of awards were made. Among them were the following from Bristol Parent-Teacher Association: Spelling, Nancy Bigelow and Joyce White, $5 each; penmanship, Judith Vandegrift, $5.

The directors represent various organizations and the community at large.

Hugh Chronister, George School, will serve as director for the two summer months, starting July 1st.

A hiring committee was named to screen candidates for a permanent director during the summer: Forrest Bliem, chairman; Mrs David K. Rishell, Mrs. Clarence Krewson and Dr. A. J. Strathie. A committee on equipment, James Tempest and Mrs. Helen Randle, will work with Mr. Chronister regarding needs for the summer program.

It was reported that about $700 has been realized thus far in the annual membership drive, with still a large number of persons to be called upon.

RECEIVES DEAN'S AWARD

Miss Regina J. Cottrell, Eddington, who graduated from the school of nursing, Woman's Medical Hospital of Penna., in Phila., Saturday, received the dean's award for having attained the highest scholastic standing in her class for three years. Miss Cottrell is a graduate of Bensalem high school, class of 1949. She was president of her class during her junior and senior year at the nursing school, and as such presented the class gift of $100 bond to Dr. Marion Fay, dean.

Delhaas Faculty Plans for Summer

town, North Carolina. Mrs. Doris Troiano intends to see part of Canada. Bernard Clarke will also make a trip to New England.

Quite a few of the teachers are continuing work on master's or doctor's degrees. These include: Sidney Oppenheimer, who will also be married during the summer; Berkley Ellis, who will attend Temple University after duty with the Army Reserve Corps at Camp Pickett, Virginia; John Antoni, another summer bridegroom who will continue study at Temple; Joseph Petrillock, studying for a doctorate in art at Penn State; Sarah Cherry, going to Penn State to begin work on a master's in music; Stanley Dick, studying at New York University; Thomas Jenkins, training for his doctorate at Penn State; Rosemarie Miles, attending Temple classes with a trip to Canada before the summer ends; Lloyd Johnson, another Penn State graduate student; Betty Kelian, completing work for a master's at Temple; and Kenneth Harrold, continuing graduate work.

Walter Miller, regional superintendent, is on a twelve-month contract and will be on duty at Delhaas all summer. The same applies to Miss Edna Pennypacker, guidance counselor, except for a motor trip to Mexico. Louis Acker will take summer employment and spend ten days in Canada. Miss Ivy Foley, after helping with school enumeration, will go to her cottage in the Poconos. J. E. Sparks and Irene Kochera will take summer jobs in the Bristol area. James Ritter will continue with employment for the school district. Malcolm Macfarlan will join the Navy for a cruise to Texas and will seek the cool comfort of the Poconos afterward.

Several of the faculty will work at being housewives. Mrs. Betty Gaskill, who is resigning to spend more time with her baby, will include a trip to the shore in her summer plans. Mrs. Dorothy Bixler and Mrs. Barbara Selman will remain in Bristol and Croydon, respectively.

Come September and the reopening of the school term, the faculty of Delhaas High School will be refreshed with eagerness after a three-month broadening of interests through travel, education and meeting other people.

Back To Tweed and Burr With Ike!

pute. The truth is that the Eisenhower spokesmen have elected to brazen the matter out and pretend that it is commendable instead of corrupt to introduce large numbers of Democratic votes into what ought to be a strictly in-the-party job for the Republicans—that of choosing its national delegates, and thereby its candidate for president.

Injection of the Democrats into Republican internal affairs, as a desperate effort to help along the floundering Eisenhower candidacy, is of course impossible in a great many states. Loopholes of this type were closed long ago by believers in clean, fair elections, so far as most of the states are concerned.

However, in a number of other states, by a variety of expedients, the Eisenhower camp has succeeded in massing an array of Democrats against the pro-Taft rank and file of the Republican party.

Two instances are sufficient to prove the point. One of the examples is that of Texas, where a deliberate publicity campaign was conducted to show the Democrats of that state that they could sign a "loyalty pledge" to the Republican Party without being legally bound by it; and second, that they could vote in the Republican precinct conventions for a Republican nominee, in the Democratic conventions for a Democratic nominee, and then next fall vote for whichever candidate they choose.

As a result, hordes of so-called "Republicans" poured out in precincts which never say more than a handful of Republican votes in history, and steam rollered through a slate of delegates which the Texas Republican State Committee and the Texas courts have declined to recognize.

The other example is that of New Jersey. Official records prove that the pro-Eisenhower state administration there found, and made abundant use of, a crack in the law whereby thousands of Democrats were able to vote in the Republican primary.

New Jersey has had a special provision on its statute books by which a would-be voter at the primaries could submit an affidavit of not having voted in a primary for two years, and thereupon receive and cast whichever party's ballot he wished, regardless of how he had been registered previously.

Normally only slight use has been made of such procedure, since the larger number of those interested in primaries vote in them at less than two-year intervals.

But the New Jersey record shows that at the spring primary, with a total of 127,276 voting Republican and 30,643 persons voting Democrat, no fewer than 63,200 persons signed these special affidavits.

Since the Democratic primary attracted scant attention, and since those who had previously been registered Republican needed no affidavit to obtain a Republican ballot, it is perfectly obvious that by far the greater part of the affidavits were used to permit Democratic voters to cast Republican party primary ballots.

On the face of the figures, somewhere upwards of half of the votes cast in the Republican primary actually were cast by Democrats.

As noted above, there is current today an active effort not only to apologize for this indefensible practice, but to try to whitewash it into something commendatory to Eisenhower — to try to prove that it shows his "vast appeal".

To cite one example among many, the Evening Bulletin in Philadelphia has editorialized and cartooned on the point that "the expressed will of the voters shall be needed."

But with all deference to the Evening Bulletin, it hasn't a leg to stand on in this argument. It can search all the exponents of political science, all the students of electoral practice, read the works of Bryce and Beard and Root and all the other analysts who guided the American people into higher concepts of election laws, review the trials and verdicts and devisions of all the corrupt-practice prosecutions ever held, and find never a single competent voice raised on behalf of the proposition that one party shall have the right to dictate its opposing party's nominations.

Naturally, the pro-Eisenhower element argues that the appearance of the Democrats in Republican meetings, waving Eisenhower banners and wearing "I Like Ike" buttons, proves that the general is vastly popular with the Democratic voters.

It proves nothing of the sort. President Truman himself set the pace for butting into the Republican nomination, and a good many thousand words have been expended trying to reveal what the President really meant when he showed his preference for General Eisenhower.

At any event, the entry of the Democrats in the Republican primaries and conventions was at the direct invitation of the Eisenhower faction, backed up by vast publicity drives, and motivated by reasons which cannot stand examination.

It could easily be that the Democratic high command, having had painful experience with the fighting ability of Senator Taft, has decided to try to stop him at all costs before the election. It might be that the Administration's long opportunity to study from the inside the record and activities of General Eisenhower has given New Deal strategists assurance that they would be able to "blow him out of the water" once he is nominated, and thereby win re-election hands down.

At any event, the attempt of the Democrats to dictate the Republican nomination is mischievous, malicious and wholly subversive of all principles of good public conduct.

Nothing could be more disastrous, in the long run, for the cause of self-government and ethical political management than for it to be tolerated that one party picks the other party's nominees!

Penfield and Belardley Residents Complain of Drainage Conditions

to number their houses and to put up street signs. The same sort of service will be made available to Margo Gardens, Winder Village, and Bath Manor on the same basis.

Local drivers who daily encounter difficulty in moving on to Route 13 from Green Lane will be pleased to learn that the commissioners have received the permit to install traffic lights at that intersection. A similar request for lights in Edgely has been refused for a second time, but efforts will be continued to secure such a light.

While on the subject of traffic problems, certain citizens of Belardleyville asked that a stop sign be placed in their circle in an attempt to slow speeders who endanger children playing in the area. This will be looked into, the commissioners stated.

Mr. Lawton, of the U. S. Steel Co. appeared briefly to invite the commissioners on a tour of the Fairless plant next Monday evening.

The commissioners were asked to attend a hearing this afternoon, in Edgely Fire Co. station, on the matter of establishing school boundary lines between Bristol and Falls townships and Tullytown borough.

A letter from Bristol Township Civic Association requested that extra help be provided for the assessors, who, because of part-time work, cannot give the necessary time and attention to making sure complete assessments be made in order to avoid extreme tax losses.

A motion was passed to the effect that no charge be made to non-profit organizations seeking permits to hold carnivals. With this on record, the board approved the refunding of $10 to the Fergusonville community center, which had previously paid for such a permit.

Elwood Britton presented a variety of bills, payment for which was approved. Robert Cameron made his treasurer's report. The police report stated that fines paid to the township in May amounted to $1,050 and that those made to the state came to $410. There were 21 fines for speeding, 15 for overweight trucks, and 14 for passing stop signs. Twelve accidents were investigated, 816 radio calls were made, and 4,130 miles were traveled in the police car.

It was recommended that the proper authority investigate the wiring at a trailer camp in Croydon, where it had been observed that the electrical outlets are obviously defective.

Mr. Erwin was given authority to make an estimate of the cost of drawing a street map of the entire township, a project which will be sorely needed soon, to make house numbering uniform throughout the district.

Eugene Stutz, in charge of township roads, received approval to add two men to his highway crew to aid him in grass-cutting and in road work.

Bristol Township Schools To Give Promotion Certificates

Both ninth and tenth grade pupils of Delhaas high school will receive certificates of promotion at the annual promotion exercises, to be held in the open-air auditoirium on the school grounds tomorrow afternoon.

The tenth-graders completed the term on Tuesday, but the seventh, eighth and ninth graders will have classes until tomorrow. Immediately after lunch tomorrow the annual varisty-faculty baseball game will be held in front of the entire student body.

About 2.30 in the afternoon, at exercises, American Legion awards to eighth graders, the Knight award to a ninth grader, and the P. T. A. trophies to the outstanding boy and girl in 10th grade will be made. Following these presentations, certificates of promotion will be given to the ninth and 10th grade class presidents, who will deliver the certificates to homeroom teachers for distribution to the pupils.

After the other classes have departed, seventh graders will have their own ball game later in the afternoon.

Bucks County Firemen To Convene at Eddington

EDDINGTON, June 12 — Bucks County firemen will assemble here tomorrow evening in the annual convention of the Bucks County Firemen's Association. There will be new departure this year in that the annual meeting of the association will be held in a community other than that in which the annual parade will take place.

The parade, this year, will be held in Doylestown Saturday afternoon and will consist of antique fire apparatus.

At the meeting tomorrow night there will be the election of officers and the hearing of annual reports.

The Women's Auxiliary will also meet here in annual session.

Dinner-Meeting Closes School League Season

TULLYTOWN, June 12 — The closing dinner and meeting of Tullytown Home and School League was held in the school on Tuesday, with 27 members present.

The menu was: ham, potato salad, macaroni salad, lettuce, baked beans, olives, pickles, rolls, pie and coffee.

The committee in charge was: Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. Stanley Carlen, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Carter Rosser, Mrs. William Harth, Mrs. Edward Forahen, Mrs. Thomas Harrison, Mrs. William Swangler, Mrs. Frank Martino, Mrs. Walter Strouse, Mrs. Everett Forestal.

Meeting was called to order by president, Mrs. Everett Forestal. Flowers were sent to a hospitalized member, Mrs. Michael Cirolli.

Play-ground committee includes: Mrs. John Kuhn, Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. William Harth, Mrs. Ralph Hart, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Mrs. Stanley Carlen, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Walter Strouse and Miss Margaret Fanghnan.

Motion was passed to donate $25 towards fire truck fund of the Tullytown Fire Co.

Election of officers took place: President, Mrs. Elwood Foraher; vice-president, Mrs. William Swangler; secretary, Mrs. John Walterick; treasurer, Mrs. Edward Paolella.

The League presented Mrs. Forestal, retiring president, with an engraved cigarette lighter; and Mrs. George Colville, who is leaving Tullytown school this year, with a Italian relish dish.

It was decided to hold a pie and cake sale, July 18th at one p. m., with the following in charge: Mrs. C. Hammer, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Stanley Carlen, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Mrs. Andrew Schaffer and Mrs. Everett Forestal.

There will be a "doggie" roast, August 12th on the lawn of Mrs. Walter Strouse's home.

New sick committee includes: Mrs. William Swangler and Mrs. John Walterick; Membership commitee, Mrs. John Kuhn and Mrs. Wilma Holley.

It was decided to send all hospitalized children of Tullytown school "sunshine" baskets amounting to $1.

September card party will be held on the 6th, the following committee in charge: Mrs. William Swangler, Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. Esther Pirolli, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Walter Strouse and Mrs. Everett Forestal.

Committee to revise by-laws, includes: Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. William Swangler, Mrs. Helen Nichols and Mrs. Edward Foraher.

Games were played, with prizes awarded.

Bloodmobile to Visit Philco Plant in Croydon

Mrs. Dean Weidner, Bristol district blood chairman, American Red Cross, announces a bloodmobile visit to be held at the Philco Corp. plant in Croydon. This visit, which will be for the employees, will be held on Tuesday, June 17, from 10 to 3:30. Fred Marcell, personnel manager, and his co-chairman in the Philco blood donor program, Miss Gwendolyn Adams, are recruiting the donors and planning the visit.

Daumont Kusma, Philco plant manager, said. "There is such great enthusiasm among the men that we are expecting a record-breaking visit. Our people have always co-operated in the past, and now they are even more anxious to do so. Our fighting men need blood, and we are going to try and help them get it."

municipal building with the fire committee acting as hosts.

Burgess Hetherington told the group it was a pleasure for him to attend "this the first graduation of a fire school of this department." He said that those taking the course, the instructor and the fire committee "deserve the thanks of the community." He mentioned that the fire equipment, now in service for a number of years, "is old." "But it is not the equipment," he said, "it is the men who man the equipment." He thanked Cowan, a fire marshal at the Rohm & Haas plant, for his untiring efforts given gratuitously. He praised Chief Clifford Hagerman.

Joseph Ferry, chairman of fire committee, expressed his appreciation for what had been accomplished, thanking Cowan, the men and the committee which he heads. He presented the other members of the committee, S Joseph Aita, II., Joseph DeLissio, Thomas Gosline, Dennis J. Roche and Michale Spinelli.

Aita, addressing the group, thanked Cowan for the time he had devoted to the work and commended those taking the course. He suggested that "this be the beginning of a real program of extensive education." He said that Cowan has had a great practical experience and that he is a very important arm of the safety program at the Rohm & Haas plant. Aita made the suggestion that perhaps in the fall and winter season visitations could be arranged to industrial plants in the area, so as to acquaint the firemen with some of the conditions they would be called upon to face should fire occur in these plants. "You should know the physical surroundings," He also said that he thought the community should also be educated to the hazards of fire. Aita, likewise, praised Chief Hagerman for the time and effort he devotes to his duties.

Cowan was then presented with the lighter and William B. Downing presented Cowan with the typewriter.

The diplomas, signed by Cowan, Chief Hagerman and members of the fire committee, were presented by Cowan and Hagerman to each man.

Cowan was profuse in thanking the men for the fine interest and cooperation. He said that he had had no intention of receiving any compensation but had done the job as a civic interest project. He said he hoped that this school was only the beginning and that others would follow.

Raymond Tomlinson, one of the graduates, said: "I have been a member of this department for 17 years and this is the first time an affair of this kind has ever been given. The men certainly appreciate it." Upon his motion the fire committee was given a rising vote of thanks.

Those receiving the diplomas were:

William Bennett, Alfred Bobbs, Robert Bowe, Wayne Buck, Joseph Cole, Raymond Coombs, James Corning, Joseph Corning.

Paul Crowley, David Downing, William M. Downing, Jasper Favorosa, Vito Favorosa, Walter Garretson, Clifford Hagerman, Jr.

Clifford Hagerman, Sr., Robert D. Harman, Ralph Hineline, Charles Jones, Ramo Kline.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Clinging to The Formula

WASHINGTON, June 12—It is interesting to note that of the five aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination only one stands for anything except the New Deal and Fair Deal policies. That one — Senator Russell, of Georgia—strongly opposes Mr. Truman's so-called civil-rights program but otherwise is mostly in line with the Administration.

—o—

However, because he is from the South, Senator Russell is the least likely to be nominated. For the rest—Harriman, Kefauver, Stevenson and Barkley—they are all of a pattern, completely New Deal and Fairl Deal. And say so. What this means is that the millions of Democrats who are—and have been for a long time—unhappy about the socialistic direction in which the party has been headed for nearly twenty years; who are deeply distrubed by the appalling condition of the national finances; who are sickened by the wide-spread corruption that has been revealed in the Truman Administration, again are going to have no choice in November except to stay home or vote for the Republican candidates.

—o—

Actually, not all of the Democratic availables, themselves sincerely believe in the Roosevelt-Truman policies. Some of them have a deep distrust of the direction in which they are being carried and a cordial distaste for part of the record which they have helped build. Nevertheless, every one of these aspirants is prepared to stand on a platform which will laud both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations to the limit; insist that they have been without flaw; minimize and excuse the revealed graft and corruption; ignore the fact that the Federal finances are dangerously out of control; indorse policies which will enhance the already appallingly swollen Federal pay roll, increase the mounting costs of an unprecedentedly inefficient Federal bureaucracy; open wider and wider the Treasury spigots from which the people's money has been pouring.

The reason these normally upright gentlemen are prepared to accept such a platform, which they can only defend by ignoring the facts and denouncing those who present them, is because of their political aspirations. They are hooked. There is no way for them to gain the presidential or vice presidential nomination or to hold their place in the Democratic party except by following the pattern of the cocky Mr. Truman, whose party loyalty seems more intense and undiscriminating than that of any previous White House occupant. He has been remarkably open in making it clear that no Democratic candidate could be so inferior; no Democratic record so bad, and no platform so unsound as to lose his support.

—o—

And the reverse of that is true of Mr. Truman regarding Republican candidates and platforms. Not many Democrats, even in public life, are willing to go that far. In the South many stanch party men have made it plain they will revolt of the candidate and the platform are genuinely offensive to them. But the present aspirants for the presidential nomination (excepting Senator Russell) have no scruples about taking the dose again, though developments of the last four years obviously have made it more obnoxious than before. But there just isn't anything for them to do save to swallow the whole nauseous mess. They have no alternative.

—o—

The truth is Democratic politicians everywhere—except in the South—are grimly holding on to the formula with which they have been victorious in the last four elections — and which they somewhat shakly hope will pull them through once more. The basis of this formula is the gigantic Federal job-holding machine to which are now attached more than 2,000,000 jobholders. This is a tremendous voting force potent in nearly every state. To it must be added the vote of organized labor, the bosses of which have become dominant in the Democratic party nationally and are close personally and politically to the President.

—o—

Other component parts of the formula are the Negro vote in the pivotal states of the North and Middle West and the farmers whose subsidy demands have been so freely granted as to cause some farm leaders, such as Allan B. Kline, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, recently to express the view that it had been overdone and was no longer in the interest of either the farmers or the country. There must also be added the professional "liberals" of the A.D.A. At any rate, that is the formula to which the Democratic aspirants cling. It almost failed them in 1948 and few contend the party has not been weakened since in all these special groups as well as with the people as a whole. Nevertheless, there is nothing to do but cling to the formula—and clinging to it they certainly are. Of course, the real Democratic hope this time is that the Republicans will kick away the opportunity for such victory in their convention next month. That might happen.

Agricultural "Lab" and Plantings To Be Visited

NEWTOWN, June 12—Members of Bucks Co. Natural Science Association will participate in a field trip, June 21st, under leadership of Stevenson Fletcher. Cars will meet at the home of Miss Julia Balderston, 116 N. Lincoln avenue, at 9.30 a. m. Persons desiring transportation may contact Miss Balderston.

The laboratory of Edwin Harrington, agricultural chemist at Carversville, will be visited, as will the home and exterior plantings of James A. Michener, Tinicum, lately returned from Japan. Box luncheon will be enjoyed there.

The walled cemetery, where Edward Marshall, one of the men who took "The Indian Walk" is interred, will also be visited.

In case of rain, the trip will be cancelled.

Nathan Hale was hanged as a spy by the British in Sept., 1776.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

BIG, COMPLETE FARMERS' MARKET, AUCTION TO OPEN IN BRISTOL

Look onct! It makes soon a Dutch Farmers' Market and Auction on Route 413, half way between the Lincoln Highway and the Bristol Pike.

Yes, on Friday, June 20, the Bristol Farmers Market Market and Auction will have a gala opening, complete with ribbon cutting, searchlights, band and plenty of notables. This real Pennsylvania Dutch style Farmers' Market and Auction will bring you the greatest assortment of merchandise ever seen in this community under one roof. In fact everything you eat, wear or use will be sold at prices you can't duplicate elsewhere.

Farmers' Markets can be found all over Pennsylvania. Three of the largest are in Quakertown, Gilbertsville and Ephrata—all deep in the Pennsylvania Dutch territory. In the very beginning, the Farmers' Markets were just exactly that—a market place where farmers and growers brought the things they produced and offered them direct to the housewives of the community. Then, the butcher and the baker and the grocer decided that a spot alongside the busy farm stalls would be a good place to sell lamb-chops, and upside-down cakes and canned goods.

Later, when store keepers other than food vendors took space, the markets became complete as we know them today. Now, there's clothing of all types, shoes, drugs, and even furniture sold at these sales.

First Time in this Area

For years the Farmers' Markets have been supplying the needs of the people in Central and Western Pennsylvania and now, for the first time, a real Pennsylvania Dutch style Farmers' Market will be just a few short minutes from your door.

Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction will be open on Fridays from noon till midnight. When the doors open at noon an enormous display of fresh fruits and vegetables from nearby farms and from all over the country, as well as groceries and other goods will be spread before you awaiting your selection. Many local farmers will be selling their own produce and nobody can undersell the man who raises his own produce.

Then, there will be the wonderfully quaint stands that sell cheeses from all over the world, specializing in Lancaster County Dutch cheeses, Swiss, sharp and the innumerable other varieties for which the Pennsylvania Dutch are famous.

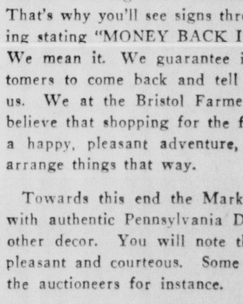
The butchers will also supply an enormous display of Dutch style fresh and smoked meats, including that mouth-watering Hickory-smoked ham, bacon, turkeys and dried beef, along with a full display of other meats prepared in that "home-style" way that is almost a lost art today.

Fresh cut poultry and eggs will be in abundance. And don't fail to shop at the bakery stands. Fresh baked "Shoo-Fly Pie," "Fastnachts" (Pennsylvania Dutch specialties), pies, cakes and bread will fill the gleaming clean shelves. You will even see these goodies baked right before your eyes, for one baker has installed his oven right in the Market and will be baking during market day.

For canned goods, frozen foods and staples, the huge 10,000 sq. ft. self service grocery will be bulging with supplies for your pantry at tremendous savings.

A Shopper's Paradise

As you walk down the aisle of this bargain shopper's paradise you will see stands displaying luggage and leather goods, lingerie, dresses and coats, electrical appliances, and even stocks and bonds will be sold. There will be a drug store, and plumbing and heating shops. You will be able to buy records, lamps and nationally advertised yard goods, all at reduced prices.



There will be shoe stores, and shops featturing ladies' blouses, nylons, carpets and furniture. You will be able to pause for a minute to refresh with a soda or stop at a stand for waffles or doughnuts and coffee. Or you may prefer a snack of french fries, candied apples, custards or cotton candy.

In fact, you will find everything you use, wear or eat at Bristol Farmers' Market and Auction.

4 Big Auctions

There will be three auctions running simultaneously every Friday afternoon and evening, where you can buy anything from a broom, an electrical appliance to a diamond ring. All the auctioned merchandise is brand new and guaranteed.

Also a public auction will be held on Friday afternoons by a licensed auctioneer who will sell anything you wish him to auction off. Just call Bristol 2773 or bring the goods to the market office any day between 9:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. and have it registered. The commission is 15%.

Each Shop Individually Owned

This sounds big, doesn't it? But it is not big business because farmers and small shop keepers are what make it. The bakery shops, poultry stalls, meat stands, the clothing and tie stands—they're all small business. The owners of the Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction are not selling a single item on the property. They own none of the stands. But the management does keep an eye on things and they see things from the customer's point of view. It is one of the few shopping centers where the management is keeping an eye on the customer's interest instead of the cash register. It makes quite a difference. That's why you'll see signs through the market building stating "MONEY BACK IF NOT SATISFIED." We mean it. We guarantee it. We want our customers to come back and tell their neighbors about us. We at the Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction believe that shopping for the family needs should be a happy, pleasant adventure, so we have tried to arrange things that way.

Towards this end the Market has been decorated with authentic Pennsylvania Dutch "Hex" signs and other decor. You will note that the merchants are pleasant and courteous. Some are even comedians—the auctioneers for instance.

There will be ample free illuminated parking space—over 30 acres. You will be able to do your entire week's shopping under one roof and enjoy every minute of it. Besides, you will save money.

The Bristol Farmers' Market and Auction management have extended an invitation to all churches, veterans' organizations, Parents-Teachers' Associations and other non-profit groups to hold bake sales on market days free of cost to them.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA---

All public, private and parochial schools in the Bristol area are invited to send news items for publication in this column which appears frequently.

Bristol Township Elementary Schools

Croydon School

Mrs. Lloyd Johnson will attend Mansfield State Teachers College during the summer session.

The outdoor music festival, under the direction of Mrs. A. Erna McKevitt, was held on school grounds on Friday. Games, singing, dancing, and pantomime were enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were served to all by the Room Mothers group.

The entire faculty of Croydon school gathered in Mrs. Devine's room after school recently for a deliciously prepared supper as a "last-get-together" social event of the term.

Maple Shade

Mrs. Mary Kates, teacher of third grade, plans to attend the regular session of summer school at West Chester Teachers College. She will later attend the post session at Shippensburg.

John Beck, teacher of fifth grade, will attend a workshop session at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College this summer.

The Room Mothers group of Maple Shade and Newportville school entertained Monday evening at dinner in honor of Miss Margaret Engelke and Mr. Wesley Wielgolasky. The affair was held in Delhaas Home Economics room which had been beautifully decorated with a large white wedding bell for Miss Engelke and a "good-luck" center piece for Mr. Wielgolasky who has resigned for health reasons.

Both were given leather traveling clocks as presents from the group.

Invited guests included Supervisors, members of both faculties, and room mothers.

In addition, the Mothers' group presented China table service and silverware for use when needed at the Newportville and Maple Shade schools during social affairs.

Maple Shade's music festival was held on the school playground on Monday, June 9th.

Many parents were present to enjoy the singing, square-dancing and music of the different grades.

Kindergarten and Community Building

On the 3rd of June, the boys and girls of the first and second grades of the Kindergarten and Community buildings entertained their parents and friends with an informal outdoor musical program.

The first grade children began the program with pantomime actions of the story of a prince and princess who were lost in the woods. Youngsters were star fairies, rabbits, and squirrels. They danced around the prince and princess. Finally a group of children (townspeople) came upon the scene to awaken all and there was frolicing and dancing.

The first grade children also demonstrated some of their rhythmic activities such as marching, swinging, boating and see-sawing.

Second grades began their portion of the program with a demonstration of rhythm sticks played to "The Syncopated Clock" an outgrowth of the study of clocks. Next came the rhythm band playing "On the Mall", and "Pop Goes the Weasel."

The last portion was devoted to second grades singing and playing the following nursery rhymes, "Sing a Song of Sixpence", "Did You Ever See a Lassie", "The Thread Follows the Needle", "Farmer in the Dell", "Humpty Dumpty", "Little Bo-Peep", "Three Little Kittens", and "Here We Go Loobly-Loo".

Edgely Intermediate

The fifth grade at Edgely recently gave a play "The Proud Princess" for their "neighbors", the fourth graders.

Today 4th grades closed the African Unit. Mrs. Wallin showed some Congo souvenirs she had from her former teaching experiences in Africa. All the children were served a Congo dinner.

The outdoor festival, under the direction of Mrs. McKevitt, was held on the afternoon of June 5th. Songs, games, and dances were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Cora Goldweber and Mr. George Mukalian will attend Temple University for regular summer session.

Mrs. Theodore Wallin and Mrs. Margaret Beck, teachers at Edgely school, will attend a workshop session at East Stroudsburg Teachers College during the summer.

racks-like buildings that house military brain of the Atlantic liance in Europe. The Supreme adquarters, Allied Powers, Eupe, is assuming more of a milicy character than it has known r nearly a year now. No longer it a center of great political atction. Gone is the glare of the nelight that marked it as the mping ground of a leading presintial candidate.

Prominent personalities visiting aris no longer feel their prestige stake unless they motor out the estern auto route to Rocquenurt. Seeing General Dwight D. isenhower in Paris had become most a matter of class distinction. ou were slipping professionally if ou had not been received by him.

Nor do political considerations ominate any longer the attitude nd activities of the "brass" at HAPE. "Matt" Ridgway is not unning for President.

SHAPE is becoming a much less xciting place than it was, especialy for the higher echelon of Amerian officers. For the European taff, however, it is showing a narked improvement in morale. lore than a few of the European fficers attached to SHAPE felt hat the concentration of interest n Ike's political future was havng a demoralizing effect on the rganization.

This was not entirely Gen. Eisenower's fault. It was a situation hat was bound to develop when he et his hat be tossed into the presiential ring. Ike recognized it uickly, and this was one of the easons he announced publicly that e could not continue to play two oles at the same time. But it was lmost inevitable, if not intentionl, that SHAPE should assume the haracteristics of a political camaign headquarters. It is rapidly esuming now the single function or which it was created—the direction of the military program for uilding up the defenses of Westrn Europe.

General Matthew B. Ridgway as lost no time in making clear hat his sole concern as supreme ommander is the efficient functioning of the organization. The opportunity to show what kind of a ew broom he intended to be came uickly. On the Saturday morning hat he turned up for work after he transfer of command, he called or an administrative report. He vas informed that the British olonel handling the report had eft for his customary week-end ff. Ridgway let it be known in no nmistakable terms that long weekends for SHAPE officers did not onform to his conception of how o implement the program of tryng to make Western Europe deensible in the shortest possible ime.

Ridgway himself works not only six days per week, but frequently a good part of the seventh as well. He is not working his new staff that hard, but he does expect them to put in half a day on Saturday. There is a refreshing air about Ridgway. He has much the same gift for turning on the charm and for inspiring idolization among those who work closely with him that Eisenhower possesses.

When I heard his qualities as a soldier, statesman and likeable human being lauded by one of his associates, it had the familiar ring of the tributes Ike's aides pay him. Partisans of each claim a premium on the sincerity of their respective hero. Both men certainly possess a glowing personality.

Eisenhower, before he left Paris, seemed to be exuding more and more the aura of a man of destiny. He had a tendency to talk in terms of spiritual values. Ridgway shows no signs of being aware that he is an historical figure. He gives the impression of a man of great vitality, with a flair for leadership and a determination to do his job well, whatever it may be.

There is some question in the minds of Europeans about the extent of Ridgway's responsibility for the situation that developed in the Korean war prisoner camps. It is recognized now that it was a mistake to maintain compounds so big that the Communist prisoners could gain internal control of their camps. American war-time practice for handling prisoners is to limit the individual camps to 500 or 600 inmates, instead of the thousands that were herded together in such camps as the one at Koje.

The explanation of Ridgway's officers is that it would have involved too much of a drain on manpower, at first, to guard the smaller camps. That seems to have been a field command decision, rather than one for which Ridgway was directly responsible.

One of the main problems confronting him as new supreme commander of the Allied forces in Europe is to overcome the reputation he has in the minds of the Europeans as a "hot-war" general. His transfer from Korea to Europe has aroused in the minds of many Europeans the fear that the United States Government may be anticipuating another Korean-type conflict over here.

Ridgway is aware of this psychological handicap and he hopes to overcome it by publicly stressing at every opportunity that he is in Europe to save the peace and not to prepare for war. His pretty wife, "Penny," incidentally, promises to prove an invaluable asset to him winning the popular support of the Europeans, and especially the French. Her gay and glamorous smile is helping already to offset the Communist propaganda attempts to portray him as the monstrous "microbe" general of Korea.

HEIRS LISTED FOR SEVERAL ESTATES

Mary C. Brennan, Late of Tullytown, Leaves Sum For Masses

SISTERS REMEMBERED

DOYLESTOWN, June 12 — A Bristol woman, Mary C. Brennan, bequeathed $100 to the rector of St. Mark's Catholic Church for the express purpose of singing masses for the repose of her soul. She died March 29 and left a personal estate of $236.88 and real estate valued at $2,000.

Elizabeth Parsons, Elkins Park, a sister, was given $100, while a sister, Margaret E. Brennan, was named residuary heir. The Farmers National Bank of Bucks Co. was named executor of the will, which was dated Nov. 16, 1934.

Mary Glassmyer, Sellersville, who died March 10, left a personal estate of $1300. Mrs. Laura Frey and Mrs. Mabel Stoneback, both of Perkasie, and Mrs. Minnie Scheetz, Quakertown, were each given $100. The will was dated Feb. 20, 1942, and Paul D. Fretz, Perkasie, was named the executor.

Residuary beneficiaries are Mrs. Laura Frey, Mrs. Mabel Stoneback, Wallace Glassmyer, Leroy and Montford Glassmyer and Minnie Scheetz.

Joseph K. Bergbauer, Quakertown, R. D. 1, a nephew, was named the sole benficiary of the $900 real estate holdings of Kathleen M. Norgan, Richland twp. The will was dated Nov. 30, 1951, and the testatrix died Jan. 24.

Stanley B. Myers, Danboro, was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Charles E. Myers, also known as C. Elmer Myers Plumstead twp., amounting to a personal estate of $7300. The decedent died Feb. 13.

In the estate of Joseph Poulson, Warminster twp., letters of administration were granted to William J. Heilman, Doylestown, amounting to $3,000 in real estate, located at 6 Hatboro ave., Warminster. Heirs are a nephew, George, New York City, and a niece, Catherine Hitzel, Red Beach, N. J., and Margaret Hitzel, same address. The decedent died March 31, 1951.

Letters of administration in the estate of Lillian J. Young, Morrisville, were granted to C. Marvin Young, a son, 619 Jefferson ave., Bristol, amounting to a personal estate of $3100. The decedent died March 13.

In the estate of Harvey Miller, Bridgeton twp., letters of administration were granted to Winfield S. Miller, 136 West Marshall ave., Langhorne, amounting to a personal estate of $7,000. A son, to whom the letters were granted, and Mrs. Carl Harrison, Phila., are the heirs. The decedent died Dec. 23, 1951.

were already apparent in the arrangements she made for her father's funeral. She gave Philip the place of honor by putting him at the extreme right of the line formed by the Dukes of Edinburgh, Gloucester, Windsor and Kent in the funeral procession.

Philip will shortly be promoted from Lieutenant Commander in the Royal Navy to Admiral's rank, to save him embarrassment in carrying out his royal duties in the presence of senior officers of the services.

But intimates of the royal couple say that the democratic Philip, while agreeing to this promotion as a sensible arrangement in keeping with his navy service, has "stubbornly argued the Queen out of giving him a Field-Marshal's baton."

And when Elizabeth also suggested that he should have a high rank in the royal air force Philip reportedly spiked this appointment by insisting on "at least winning my wings first."

Philip will, after the coronation, begin taking private tuition in flying from one of the senior R. A. F. instructors at Cranwell, Britain's West Point of the air. Both Edward VIII and George VI earned their wings and were competent pilots.

Philip, as father of the heir to the throne, Prince Charles, will almost certainly be nominated one of the councillors of state in the new regency act. It is imperative that Parliament has authority to appoint a regent, who could, if the need ever arose, act on behalf of Prince Charles during his minority. Whether Parliament would agree to naming Philip as potential regent is however a matter for debate.

Britain's "First Gentleman," with a Queen-wife who dotes on him and with the public behind him, has before him the opportunity of molding the spirit of the new Elizabethan Age.

It has already become clear that he will not only emulate Victoria's consort, Prince Albert, by acting as permanent advisor and minister to the Queen, and influence the upbringing of the heir to the throne, but will play a full part in the formal business of the crown and in public work.

No one who has chatted with Philip, or who has attempted to calculate the mark he has made on English life in the space of the past four years, would make the mistake of writing off his abilities.

Although he does not actually possess the startling all around brilliance some admirers attribute to him, he has an extremely active, comprehensive and strong mind, with original and unconventional twists unusual in Princes.

But Philip is not a normal Prince. He is not lightly swayed and he is always demanding reasons and motives and details. His life as a junior naval officer sharpened his wits, enabled him to meet all sorts and all classes of men.

Philip, in fact, appears to be a perfect foil for his wife. Elizabeth was brought up in a narrow circle and taught to tread the path of sobriety and strictness. She is self-assured, intelligent and a wizard on constitutional law. But she knows little from personal experience about the world and its ways.

Philip can provide all the answers she needs.

Thus the young Queen is going to depend upon her husband and follow his judgment in many fields.

Said one distinguished authority on court affairs: "The truth is, although it may be disguised in words, we have not one young sovereign but two."

None who knows Philip believe that he aims at any power for himself. Neither is he expected, like Prince Albert, to "entirely sink his own individual existence in that of the Queen" in this modern age.

A close friend of the sailor-consort told International News Service that "Philip has no personal ambitions other than to have his wife go down in history as a great Queen."

This same friend explained that Philip "really prefers little jobs." He has sketched designs for an up-to-date naval uniform for the royal navy. Philip's idea is to retain the traditional characteristics but moderize the "square rig" uniform to make it more functional and comfortable. British seamen, for example, have to drag tight jumpers over their heads. Philip prefers a jumper with a zipper and slightly padded shoulders.

The Duke of Edinburgh is unorthodoxly qualified for some of his official positions. He is probably the only member of the royal family who has been good at the game of cricket — and thus more than qualified as President of the famous Marylebone Cricket Club — the ruling authority on British cricket.

His presidency of the national playing fields association, for which he has worked tirelessly to provide sports grounds for British youngsters, gains color from the fact that he turned out as a first-rate goalkeeper for naval soccer teams.

He has piloted his own yacht to victory at Cowes and is an enthusiastic and expert yachtsman. British yachtsmen are already looking forward to the part which they are confident the Queen and Philip will play in their sport.

Elizabeth frankly hates sailing but either for love, or because Philip converted her, now actively pursues it. Together they own the dragon-class "Bluebottle" and the smaller "Coweslip."

Both are ordinary members of the island sailing club at Cowes, where the atmosphere is young and carefree. They are also members of the royal yacht squadron, which nearby guards the old traditions. Yachtsmen feel that the royal couple, thanks to Philip, will bridge the gap between the new spirit of adventure and the old dignity.

The Queen's husband has studied the life and and the letters of Prince Albert. He has probed deeply into secret royal archives and is never likely to overstep the line in constitutional behavior.

But his new role as the "First Gentleman of the Land" isn't changing his easy-going personality.

Britain's savile row has frankly despaired of making a fashion plate of Philip. He continues to dress in a comfortable and even casual manner.

His most shocking "sartorial sin," of course, is going so frequently without a hat. What's more, to the horror of milliners, he sometimes gets the Queen of England to leave her hat behind. And that little fact, perhaps as much as anything, shows that as "King Consort," "Prince Consort," or by any other title, Philip is a man whose influence Britions will have to reckon with.

To Women With Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

the mink coat scandals, the deep freeze gifts, the free trips to expensive Florida resorts. They have not forgotten the crooked dealers in influence who had free access to the White House. They have not forgotten the irregularities in the Commodity Credit Corporation at a cost of millions of dollars to the taxpayers.

"No one will forget the scandalous cheating on income taxes—the grafting fixers in the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Department of Justice.

"The Democratic Administration at Washington cannot escape the consequences of its arrogant disregard for all moral and ethical principles when the sordid story of bribery and corruption was revealed.

"I ask you to remember that these shocking betrayals of the public trust were not brought out into the open by any act of the Administration.

"On the contrary, the Administration put forth every effort to conceal and protect the unholy alliance between law violators and fixers in and out of government.

"An iron curtain of official secrecy was placed around the bribetakers, the influence peddlers, and all other cheaters who used public office to enrich themselves by crooked practices.

"Their disgraceful acts were hidden from the public until Congressional investigating committees turned the spotlight of publicity into the dark corners of crime and conspiracy.

"In my opinion the failure of the President to take prompt and drastic action to drive the crooks out of public office and bring them to the bar of justice was one of the most disgraceful affairs in American history.

"I do not say that any one political party has had a monopoly on wrongdoers. But I do say that whenever corruption was revealed in any administration prior to the New Deal and the Fair Deal, it was met with immediate and vigorous action for the protection of the people and their government.

"Only a Republican administration can restore the principles of common honesty to our government.

"I am convinced that the existence of the United States as a free Nation is threatened by the sugar-coated but deadly philosophy of an administration that has shown itself bankrupt in political morality, bankrupt in leadership and bankrupt in respect for the sanctity of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"More alarming than the issue of corruption is the extreme danger to which the American form of government is exposed by the constantly increasing concentration of power and authority at Washington.

"Such a course inevitably leads to Socialistic dictatorship. It destroys freedom of the individual. It robs the people of incentive and opportunity. It means restrictions upon personal liberty and regimentation under a planned and controlled economy.

"During the last twenty years the concentration of power at the Federal level has resulted in taxation which approaches the point of confiscation. It has resulted in continuous deficit financing, inflation and the most enormous National debt in all history.

"Twenty years ago, we spent less than $4 billion a year to operate the Federal Government. Now the Truman administration proposes to spend $85 billion in one fiscal year.

"Twenty years ago we had less than 600,000 Federal employees. Now we have more than 2,500,000 with a payroll of 10½ billion dollars a year.

"Today there are 1470 people employed in the Executive Office of the President. When Theodore Roosevelt was President, he had only 20 people in his offices and even Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the height of World War II., had less than 600.

"Twenty years ago the Federal government took 6 per cent of the people's earnings in taxes. Today the taxpayers of the Nation must give up about one-third of their wages and salaries and one-third of the income of all industry and business just to pay the cost of government.

"Twenty years ago the National debt was less than 20 billion dollars. Now it is almost $260 billion and it is being pushed higher and higher by unrestrained demands for more and bigger spending.

"Only a Republican administration can assure the continuance of government by law and not by men.

"The Republican Party in the 80th Congress proved that the budget can be balanced, not by just talking about it, but by adjusting expenditures to income. It was the first time the budget had been balanced in 17 years.

"The Republican Party in the 80th Congress cut proposed spending by $6 billion. By sane, sensible, economical Republican management the fiscal year 1948 was ended with a surplus of nearly $8½ billion and the National debt was reduced by $7 billion.

"In 1948 the Republican 80th Congress succeeded in over-riding President Truman's veto of tax reduction bills and cut individual income taxes by 4 billion, 800 million dollars a year, with most of the benefits going to taxpayers with incomes under $5000 a year. This was the first tax reduction in 20 years. More than 7 million citizens in the lower income brackets were removed completely from the tax rolls.

"The Republican Party has done these things and will do them again if we are strong and united for victory in November. We will win by fighting courageously for the principles to which the Republican Party is dedicated.

"We will win by presenting the issues honestly, fairly and clearly to the American people.

"We will win by exposing the dangers into which we have been led by New Deal waste and extravagance.

"We will win by offering a sound, sane, constructive Republican program by which we propose to build a better, happier, stronger America of freedom and opportunity."

GLASS WARNING

PHILADELPHIA — (INS)—Sunglasses used in night driving may reduce the glare on oncoming headlights, but they also might lead to injury or death of pedestrians. So says Edward P. Curran, of the Keystone Automobile Club, who warned that although dark glasses may shield a motorist's eyes, they cut down his view of the road ahead.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, June 12. —Every time congress attempts to slice some of the fat from defense appropriations, Pentagon officials both military and civilian, wail like banshees that another gun, another tank has been torn from the hands of our fighting men in Korea.

The argument is pure propaganda, as phony as it is immoral, and the admirals, generals and laybosses know it.

Pending in the senate is a proposed $2,500,000,000 cut in Mr. Truman's request appropriation of $52,400,000,000 for the 12 months beginning July 1. The proposal does not specify where the pruning is to be done; it merely reduces the overall defense check by that amount and tells the department to apply the scissors where they best fit the cloth.

The "guns for the boys in Korea" aria is, of course, the Pentagon's own propaganda dressing, designed for tawdry capitalization on the emotions of the American people. A goulish business, but we stoop low these days to chisel what we want.

Only 35 per cent of the total defense budget goes for weapon procurement. The rest is for salaries and administrative costs and the intent of congress is that the savings be sweated out of the obesity in this other 65 per cent.

With profound breast beating about the economies they have achieved in unification of the armed forces, the brass hats themselves told congress they had cut operating costs by $1,800,000,000. The budget, however, contains no reflection of such.

Instead, it ups the request for administrative funds by $900,000,000. To this, the gentlemen of the senate take exception. The overall discrepancy adds up to $2,700,000,000. They are willing to settle for $2,500,000,000 but the Pentagon powers resist even that.

To demonstrate the wantonness of the propaganda pitch, the congress actually could cut from the military budget more than ten times the proposed $2,500,000,000 and still not lose or even delay delivery of a single plane, gun, tank or anything else, needed either in Korea or Europe.

And if the Pentagon got every dollar it asks for between now and 1955, not another piece of fighting equipment above current production rates would find its way into the hands of the fighting men.

On the basis of present supplies, allocations of materials, and the production capacity of defense plants, it is physically impossible to increase the turn out take of military "hardware", and if it were possible, the military wouldn't do it. Development of new and better weapons is progressing too rapidly to freeze designs and go into all-out production.

The Pentagon's own figures prove that they ended the fiscal year last June 30 with $30,000,000,000 unspent, productive capacity of American industry having fallen that far short of meeting defense orders. This year the leftover will be $28,000,000,000, making a total of $58,000,000,000. As of June 30, 1953, the kitty will be close to $100,000,000,000.

The armed services, of course, use the argument that they need the billions to plan in advance for procurement; planes ordered today cannot be airborne, nor ships launched for three years. The argument is invalid because an authorization for the ordering of the equipment is all that is necessary, not the cash in hand.

Furthermore, it is somewhat obscure how a cut of $2,500,000,000 out of the budget for fiscal 1952-53 is going to rob the boys in Korea of any guns, tanks or ammunition in the next few months.

The joint congressional committee on internal revenue in a recent report recommended a cut in defense expenditures, not in the amount the senate proposes, but $5,400,000,000. They've studied the facts inside and out and they ought to know.

The Capitol at Harrisburg was dedicated in October, 1906.

FAIRLESS HILLS HAS FOUR SETS OF TWINS

Youngest, "Home-Grown," Are Seven-Weeks-Old Onaitis Children

OLDEST IS 10½ YEARS

FAIRLESS HILLS, June 12—This community can boast of four sets of twins — ranging in age from seven weeks to 10½ years.

The seven weeks old duo spend their time sleeping; the next oldest set, 2½ years, can get into more mischief than one would imagine; while school activities and play occupy the time of a set of girl twins, age 10 years; and a sister and brother of the age of 10½.

None of the four sets are identical twins, but least alike in appearance are Joanne and Suzanne Manns, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Manns, of Austin drive. Joanne, larger of the two, is a blonde, while Suzanne has dark hair. They were born in January, 1950. Mr. Manns is a general turn foreman in the blast furnace department at Fairless Works. The twins have two sisters and a brother, ranging from nine to 14 years, and the twins are their pets.

The baby twins are Thea and Terry Onaitis, seven-weeks old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Onaitis, Andover road. The twins were born after the Onaitis family moved here, and so are termed "home-grown". At birth they weighed 3 lbs. 13 oz., each. The father is employed in the work control department at Fairless Works, he moving here from Pittsburgh section.

The Zaner twins, Susan and Dianne, are 10 years old this month, and are fourth grade pupils at Fairless Hills school. Although both have freckles, Susan has blonde hair and Dianne, light brown. They are, needless to say, inseparable. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Zaner, Mr. Zaner being in the engineering section of Fairless Works. He had previously operated a water works plant in Flordia. Another daughter, Andrea, 15, makes three girls in the household.

Linda and David Crooks, 10½, were born on their father's birthday anniversary, Nov. 24th. David is paying for a lawn mower by cutting his neighbors' lawns. Linda's interest mainly is sewing. The twins attend Fallsington School.

Mr. Crooks, employed by U. S. Steel Co. for five years, is supervisor of traffic at Fairless Works.

The New York Central Railroad opened to Albany in the fall of 1851.

PRE-JUNE MARRIAGE LICENSES NUMEROUS

Business Brisk in May in Anticipation of June Ceremonies

132 COUPLES APPLY

DOYLESTOWN, June 12 — Business became brisk in the Marriage License Bureau here just prior to June weddings. A total of 132 couples applied for such licenses during May, many of them planning to wed in June.

Of the 132 bridegrooms-to-be, only 18 were servicemen. Seven sailors and seven soldiers and four air force men applied. Practically all the servicemen were in the very young age bracket and married teen-age brides. No Marines were among the altar-bound servicemen.

Thirty of the brides were minors and needed parental consent while only 13 of the men needed consent. Divided into age groups, there were no men under 18; while there was one sixteen-year-old bride; and four who were 17. Three boys and four girls were 18; and five prospective bridegrooms and 11 prospective brides were 19. The twenty age group claimed five men and ten women.

Forty-two of the 262 applicants were going to the altar for the second time; there were no three-time applicants this month. Ten men and 18 women dissolved first marriages by divorce. There were eight widowers and six widows in the group.

The youngest applicant was a 16-year-old girl from Quakertown who wed a 19-year-old Sellersville boy. The youngest couple, both of whom were 18, came from Quakertown. The oldest couple came from New Britain. The bride was born in 1890; and her husband-to-be was born in 1884. There were no couples marrying this past month with great age differences.

Compared with last May, this May is ahead of the record. Last year there were 121 applications received in May. The total, however, cannot come up to May, 1950, when 144 applications were granted. A total of 460 licenses have been applied for in 1952.

COHASSET, Mass. — (INS) — A 65-year-old grandmother has made town history in Cohasset. Mrs. Helen Scripture is the first woman even to be elected a selectman. She campaigned without a platform and never said anything against her opponents, or anything controversial.

14 NATION'S FLAGS FLUTTERING MORE PLACIDLY AT NATO

Now Bear Less Symbolical Semblance to Political Convention Banners

ATMOSPHERE CHANGE

Supreme Headquarters Is Assuming More of A Military Character

The article that follows inaugurates a new Courier weekly feature called "Memo to America." Each week, hereafter, noted foreign correspondents the world over will send an informal, letter-style "memo" to readers of the Courier telling them of interesting behind-the-headlines doings in the various countries in which these correspondents live and work. Sometimes these memos will deal with big news, but more often than not with "little" news—the little things of interest to peoples everywhere which under the pressure of events don't always come to light. Each day that passes makes the world smaller and makes more people our neighbors. These "memos" are designed to help you know better your neighbors across the seas, and the Americans living abroad. Today's memorandum comes from Paris and sheds interesting light on how the change in commands at SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe) has affected that vital "HQ."

"MEMO FROM PARIS"
By Kingsbury Smith
(European General Manager, International News Service)

Flags of the 14 NATO nations towering over the entrance to SHAPE headquarters outside Paris seem to flutter more placidly these days. They bear less symbolical semblance to the banners of a political convention than they did a couple of weeks ago.

There is a change of atmosphere, too, inside the sprawling, one-story

FIRST LEVITTOWN SCHOOL

This architect's drawing shows what the first school in Levittown will look like, it's site plan and details of the main entrance. It is Bristol township's John Fitch elementary school, now being planned for the new community that is expected to grow to 70,000 in three years. The "self-contained" 600-pupil building, designed around the needs of the modern curriculum and embodying accepted advances in school architecture, will occupy a 24-acre site centering on the first section of Levittown together with swimming pool, ball field and playground areas. It will have 20 all-purpose classrooms, each with direct access to an adjacent outdoor teaching area. Layout and equipment in each of the 22-by-37½-foot classrooms allow for simultaneous work in three related activities, like art, science and woodworking or the three R's. Each room will have its own toilet, storage and wardrobe facilities. Other features of the school include a 40-by-60-foot auditorium-gymnasium, a 240 seat cafeteria, complete kitchen, administrative offices and music practice room. Utility installations allow for eventual expansion of the school to 800-pupil capacity. Construction is to start this summer and partial occupancy is expected by late fall. The school was designed by the Philadelphia architectural firm of Howell Lewis Shay in cooperation with Bristol township school authorities and Bucks County administrator Dr. Charles H. Boehm.

FORESEE "PROUD NEW TITLE" FOR PHILIP

Will Shortly Be Promoted From Lt. Commander To Admiral's Rank

COMPREHENSIVE MIND

This third and last article of a series on Prince Philip shows now Elizabeth's husband can and is molding the spirit of England's new Elizabethan Age.

By Fred Doerfinger
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 12 — (INS) — Palace sources believe that Queen Elizabeth II will create a "proud new title and dignity" for her versatile consort, Prince Philip.

The Queen is said to frown on the idea of imitating Queen Victoria by naming her husband "Prince Conosrt" like his predecessor Prince Albert.

Rumors are circulating that in her devotion to Philip, Elizabeth may even try to have him crowned "King Consort" at her coronation in Westminster Abbey next year.

But responsible court and political authorities believe the Queen has a title like "Prince Royal," or "Prince of Great Britain," or "Prince of the Commonwealth" in mind.

They also feel the Queen may not wait until her coronation to confer the new title on Philip and settle his precedence officially.

Sources close to the Queen say that she is "just a little impatient" to see Philip established in his "rightful position" as the Nation's First Gentleman.

There is no doubt that Elizabeth will by official act elevate her husband to first place among the men of her realm. Her intentions

Howard G. Krupp Gives The Address of Welcome To the Visitors

PATROLS ERECT CAMP

WASHINGTON CROSSING, June 12—Over 700 Scouts and Scouters of the Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, participated in the largest camporee in the history of the Council, here, last week-end.

Howard G. Krupp, of the Park Commission, gave the address of welcome on Saturday evening at the Freedom Campfire at which time he stressed the importance of Scout training for the boy of today. A plaque was presented to him by the Scout Commissioner, Francis P. Kemmerer.

It was an inspiring sight as the 123 Patrols set up their camps on

BACK TO TWEED AND BURR WITH IKE!

There can be only one explanation for General Eisenhower not having disavowed the strategy and tactics being used to try to win the Republican nomination for him.

That reason is the indisputable fact that when it comes to politics, General Eisenhower is a babe in arms. He is most literally "in the hands of his friends." He himself has made no bones about this point. He seems to consider it somewhat a feather in his cap that he leaves the politicking to his buddies, and himself deals only with the high-level philosophizing.

The result is that corrupt political practices which most reform elements thought were permanently buried long ago have been resurrected. Methods not unlike those of Aaron Burr, the first man who tried to buy the presidency with patronage, and of boss Tweed, who was almost a genius at manipulating his own party and a "captive" opposition as well, have been put back into effect.

Not only that, but these debased methods are being eloquently and noisily defended by those who ought to have better taste and judgment.

In brief, what the pro-Eisenhower camp has been doing is to engineer it so that the Democrats would have more to say about the Republican nomination than the Republicans would.

This subversive effort, wholly indefensible as a matter of clean and high-standard political ethics, blew up to a tempest in Texas. But it has been under way all spring.

Of the essential facts there can be no dis-

PICNICKERS PREPARE FOR SUMMER SEASON

Sunday Schools of Bristol List Dates and Places For Outings

SOME, LATE SUMMER

Girls and boys and even adults of the Sabbath schools in Bristol are eager with anticipation for their annual church school picnics. In many instances the sites have been chosen, parks within several miles of the borough; and the dates set.

Some are chartering buses, and private cars will augement these.

The programs will be dependent upon what type of park is chosen. Where there are amusement concessions such will attract the attention of the picnickers for a good part of the day. At other parks, baseball games, sports and races will hold sway.

The big event, in all cases, will be the picnic dinner, complete with the usual potato salad, sliced ham, possibly fried chicken, sliced tomatoes, yummy, golden lemon butter; crisp potato chips, bright-green pickles; colorful olives; flaky

Capacity Audience Hears Senator Indict Truman Administration

RAPS HEAVY SPENDING

Honesty is One of The Vital Issues in Campaign, He Says

(Special to The Courier)

SHAWNEE - ON - THE - DELAWARE, June 12—A sweeping Republican victory next fall was predicted by Pennsylvania's U. S. Senator Edward Martin here last night in an address at the annual June rally of the Monroe Council of Republican Women.

A capacity audience heard the former Pennsylvania Governor scathingly indict the Truman Administration for the widespread corruption which has been exposed by Congress and allowed to fester by the Chief Executive, as well as for the reckless dissipation of the assets and resources of the American people.

In his address Senator Martin said:

"One of the vital issues of the 1952 campaign is the issue of honesty against dishonesty. It is an issue on which every American must take a stand.

"The American people have not forgotten the bribery of public officials to influence R. F. C. loans,

DELHAAS FACULTY PLANS FOR SUMMER

Some Will Seek More Education, Others Employment, Others Travel

PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Members of the Delhaas high school faculty will spend a varied summer with vacations, education, employment, and homework on the agenda.

Although Henry B. Decker, principal, will be at school for most of the summer, he plans to spend two weeks in New England. Mrs. Pearl Struble will be another New England visitor. Mrs. Selma Baird, school nurse, will visit both Virginia and Penn State. Anna Louise Getz, librarian, may go to New England or the West Indies. Miss Barbara Kaiser, commercial teacher, will make a grand tour of Europe. Miss Sara Hart plans to penetrate deep into the heart of Texas. Mrs. Ethel Owens will vary her summer at farms she owns in New Buffalo, Pennsylvania, and George-

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Allied Troops Gouge Out Two Wedges in Red Lines

Seoul—Tank-paced Allied troops, supported by jet fighter-bombers, gouged out two wedges in Red lines today after launching a bold attempt to blunt massive enemy strength in North Korea's iron triangle area. Some of the year's bloodiest fighting raged through the day and was still going on in at least one sector at dusk Thursday as Allied raiders pressed their thrusts behind flame-throwing, shell-spitting tanks. The raiding teams drove wedges into the fringes of Chinese front line buildups on both sides of the base of the iron triangle—west of Chorwon on the western front and southwest of Kumsong in the center.

Warns of Possible Russian Victory if American Support of U. N. is Withdrawn

United Nations, N. Y.—A former spokesman for the U. S. United Nations delegation warned today that the Soviet Union will gain "a tremendous victory" if American support of the UN is withdrawn. Porter McKeever, newly-appointed director of the Chicago council on foreign relations, assailed the Truman administration for by-passing the UN on the Marshall Plan and NATO.

Russians Answer Sharp U. S. Protest

Berlin—The Russians in Berlin today answered the recent sharp American protest over the shooting of a U. S. soldier by a communist policeman. Contents of the note were expected to be released shortly. Pvt. Wilfred R. Chenevert, of North Grafton, Mass., was grazed on the left leg by a bullet June 4, while carrying out a routine jeep patrol near the border between the U. S. sector of Berlin and the Soviet zone.

Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber Dies

Munich—Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber died in Munich today after a short, severe illness. He was 83. The prelate, born in Heidenfeld, Germany, had been Archbishop of Munich since 1917.

PENFIELD AND BELARDLEY RESIDENTS COMPLAIN TO COMMISSIONERS ABOUT DRAINAGE CONDITIONS IN THEIR AREAS

Meeting in Edgely Fire Co. Station Reaches High Pitch—Penfield Tract Residents Claim No Families There Have Dry Cellars — Heated Discussion Over Conditions at Belardley Tract—With Session Getting Out of Order, Group Withdraws to Appoint Spokesmen.

EDGELY, June 12 — Presided over by George Sottung, President, and attended by all of the commissioners, the Bristol township board of commissioners held its monthly meeting last evening in Edgely Fire Co. station.

After reading of the minutes by Elwood Britton, secretary, committee reports were given. Eugene Stutz reported that some new roads have been started and may be finished in a month. Oscar Booz, health commissioner, stated that local beach waters are being investigated to make certain they are safe for swimmers. In particular, Silver Lake is to be tested. Mr. Houser, Bath road, suggested that some check be made on glass littering Silver Lake beaches, and the commissioners will check on this.

The meeting reached a high pitch when two groups of residents presented problems pertaining to their localities. The first group represented families in the Penfield section along Newport road. Their complaint concerned drainage, which they claim has been so poor that no families in the area have dry cellars. George Sottung stated that apparently the drainage pipes had not originally been installed properly. William S. Erwin, township engineer, will make a survey of this condition and report the results of his findings.

The second group, which comprised the majority of about 75 people who attended the meeting, caused heated discussion when they complained about the swamp condition at the Belardley tract along Rogers road. Because the meeting was getting out of order, the Belardley residents withdrew to another room to organize and appoint a committee to represent them. When they returned to the meeting, they had selected Arnold Ody, Martin Needham, and Frank Steinberger, all of Snowden avenue, to accompany Fred Hibbs, a commissioner, to contact Lawrence Monroe, attorney, about what can be done to relieve the "dreadful situation" that is claimed to exist with the swamp. Erwin will also make a survey at once of this problem so that he can report shortly on his recommendations.

Residents of the Belardley tract were informed they may receive direct mail service if they organize

TO ASK BIDS WHEN MONEY IS AVAILABLE

Expect Congress to Make Hill-Burton Funds Available For Hospital

AUDIT IS COMPLETED

Progress reported at the executive committee meeting of the Lower Bucks County Hospital was made known today through the Public Relations Committee Chairman. The report states:

Hill-Burton Funds: Appropriation has not yet been made. However, the Department of Welfare feels reasonably sure it will be passed by Congress before they recess. Assurance has been given that the Lower Bucks County Hospital stands at the top of the list and therefore the money will be forthcoming if Congress makes the appropriation. As soon as this money is definitely available, the plans can go out for competitive bidding.

Audit of Accounts: Herr and Herr submitted an audit on May 1, of the hospital accounts and this report will soon be published.

Selection of Hospital Staff: The staff committee is acknowledging the applications already received and are checking their references. It is hoped that a considerable number of applications will be received during the coming month. To aid in sifting these applications the staff committee has been assured of help from the following prominent medical men: G. Morris Pierson, M. D., University of Pennsylvania, General Medicine; Thaddeus Montgomery, M. D., Jefferson-

THIRTY-TWO FIREMEN ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Group Entertained at Affair Climaxing Conclusion of Training Course

HIGH PRAISE IS GIVEN

Thirty-two members of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department, last evening, received diplomas certifying that they had completed a one-night-a-week training course for 13 weeks in fire fighting. The instructor, James J. Cowan, received the thanks of the fire committee of Bristol Borough Council and also of the pupils he had instructed for the time and effort he devoted to the task. He was presented with a Ronson lighter on behalf of the committee and a portable typewriter on behalf of those who had received the benefits of the instruction.

At seven o'clock the graduates, members of the fire committee, Burgess I. J. Hetherington, and invited guests sat down to a bountiful supper served by Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mrs. Russell Mills, Mrs. Lillian Reeves and Miss Norma Waite, of Bristol Blood Donors Emergency Squad. Garden flowers decked the tables. The affair was held in the assembly room of the

BREAK IN CANAL

DOYLESTOWN, June 12 — The first break in the Delaware Canal since the water was returned to the canal two weeks ago, occurred early yesterday at a point where the canal crosses the aqueduct over Tohickon Creek, at Point Pleasant. No damage resulted but the canal is without water from Point Pleasant to a point about two miles north. The water of the canal between the two points emptied into the Tohickon Creek. The State will repair the break in the bank of the canal at the aqueduct entrance.

Miss Anna N. Lukens Dies at Langhorne Home

LANGHORNE, June 12—A well-known Langhorne resident, Miss Anna Nicholson Lukens, died at her home, 201 W. Maple avenue, yesterday morning following a prolonged illness.

Born in Philadelphia, she was the daughter of the late Ephraim C. and Anna C. Briscoe Lukens. Miss Lukens was a member of Langhorne Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John A. Harvey, Langhorne Presbyterian Church pastor, will conduct the service at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow at the Dunn funeral home. Burial will take place in West Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Trust Co. Branch To Be At Rt. 13, Oxford Valley Rd.

According to notice published in newspapers yesterday, the Bristol Trust Co. will open its branch office in Bristol township at the northwest corner of New Route 13 and Oxford Valley-Tullytown road.

The trust company yesterday published an advertisement of its intention to file articles of amendment with the Dept. of State on June 17th for the purpose of amending the articles of incorporation of The Bristol Trust Company whose principal place of business is at 200-208 Radcliffe street. The proposed amendment will state that the company plans to establish a branch office at the place above mentioned.

POLE FIRE

Bristol firemen were summoned at 2.30 yesterday afternoon when a utility pole ignited on Maple Beach road, near the borough dump.

PEACE PIGEONS!

Jacques Duclos, perhaps the prize internationalist communist big shot outside the iron curtain, was placed behind a different sort of iron curtain, courtesy of the Paris police. They arrested him in the midst of one of the violent riots set off by the communists in Paris.

In Duclos' car the police found two carrier pigeons, a radio tuned to police broadcasts directing riot squads, a blackjack and a loaded revolver. It looked as if he was masterminding the riots. The charge against Duclos: Illegal possession of the gun.

Duclos is a member of the French parliament and leader of the communist delegation in that body. The communists are the largest party in France today. He would have a good claim to the post of premier, except for the fact that communists are excluded from the cabinet.

Five years ago, with some misgivings, Premier Ramadier ran the risk of kicking the communists out of the cabinet, and they have been excluded ever since. If Ramadier had not taken the action he did, France might have gone the way of Czechoslovakia.

But Duclos is a power far outside the borders of France. In 1945, it was an article by Duclos, translated and reprinted in the New York Daily Worker, that caused Earl Browder to be ousted as head of the communist party in the U. S. A few years later Duclos set off a series of public statements by communists in non-communist countries all over the world, who followed his lead in declaring—one after another—that in a war between their own nations and Russia they would be for Russia.

The riots Duclos was involved in constituted a hate-America demonstration. The United States has been aiding France with billions of dollars. Russia doesn't like that, obviously, and French communists were again showing that their first loyalty is to Russia. They were showing it with spiked clubs, blackjacks, bottles and metal folding chairs.

News reports omitted details about the pigeons found in Duclos' car. One thing is certain: They weren't doves of peace.

If elected President, Harold Stassen says he would eliminate crime by appointing two women to his cabinet. Apparently he thinks the job would be a little stiff for one.

With strikes and politics erupting throughout the nation, this summer promises to be anything but prosaic.

Because of a shortage some of the more important types of ammunition are being rationed in Korea, where the prelude to the war a former Defense Secretary said this country could win before breakfast is being fought.

Ensign John D. Orr Takes As Bride, Miss Lenore R. Meyer

MOORESTOWN, N. J., June 12—Mrs. F. Leonard Meyer announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lenore Rogers Meyer, to Ensign John D. Orr, United States Navy, son of Mrs. John P. Homiller, of Newtown, Pa., and Mr. Clifford H. Orr, of Downingtown, Pa. The ceremony occurred yesterday afternoon at three o'clock in the Presbyterian Church, here.

The Rev. E. C. Williams performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride is an alumna of George School, Newtown, and on Monday was graduated from the School of Nursing, University of Rochester.

The bridegroom, a graduate of George School, was on Monday graduated from the Mechanical Engineering School of Cornell University with the rank of ensign. He has been assigned for active duty on the USS "Ingersoll" and will report for duty June 30th at Newport, R. I.

Saturday and prepared their meals. The Scouts were camped in the concentration area where Washington's troops gathered on Christmas night in 1776 to embark on their crossing to the Battle of Trenton and defeat of the British troops.

During the afternoon on Saturday the Scouts hiked to the various points of interest in the Park including the Embarkation Point and the original Picture of Washington Crossing the Delaware on display in the Washington Crossing Methodist Church.

After supper an inspiring retreat ceremony was held at which time the patrols and troops assembled at the Flag for the lowering of the flag.

At the campfire presentations were made and various Council Officials were introduced including George S. Hobensack, president; Dr. A. J. Strathie, Camping and Activities Chairman; and members of the Executive Board.

Field Executives William J. Gates, Jr., and Ralph J. Stoudt, Jr., were in charge of the campfire. The Scouts who attended the National Jamboree at Valley Forge and the Camp Staff for 1952 had a part in the program.

Church service was conducted by Rev. Harold Hallam of the Washington Crossing Church. Scouts of Catholic Faith attended St. George's R. C. Church in Titusville of which Father McLaughlin is the priest.

During Sunday morning the districts presented demonstration areas where cooking, fire lighting, signal tower building, pack rack making and other skills were demonstrated.

A self-judging method was used during the Camporee with each troop and patrol judging itself in the job being done. Patrol scores were determined by the Scouts participating. The Central Bucks Fire and Rescue Unit under direction of Ralph Wasser and A. T. Clark were set up in the headquarters to care for emergencies.

The Camporee was the most successful ever conducted by the Council. The cooperation of the Washington Crossing Park Commission and police and Pennsylvania State Police aided greatly in the success of the Camporee.

The Camping & Activities Committee of the Council, Dr. A. J. Strathie, Chairman, planned and carried out the program at Washington Crossing.

The Scout Executive of the Council, Raymond W. Hoxworth, and his staff with the District Commissioners assisted the Camping Committee in carrying out the details of the Camporee.

The annual Fourth of July picnic of the Bristol Christain Church, Wood and Walnut streets, is being postponed so that the Rev. Anthony A. Marinacci may take his congregation to a camp meeting at Malaga, N. J. The Rev. Mr. Marinacci expects that the picnic will be held the following week, although the date is not definite.

Some of the other church schools are undecided as to time and place of picnics, but anticipate such for mid-summer or later.

Commissioner Addresses Taxpayers' Group

EDDINGTON, June 12—Bensalem Taxpayers Association held a meeting on Monday evening in Otremski's hall.

John Walsh, county commissioner, introduced General Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the Senate from Lehigh and Bucks counties.

Mr. Walsh explained the 1953 assessments. He told of the need of a new court house in Doylestown, a new jail wing, an addition to the poor house, and a home for juveniles who are now placed in foster homes. It was suggested to mark "Candidates Night" at a future meeting having both Republican and Democratic candidates present.

Fire Protection: Some of the fire protection facilities for hospitals are specified by the State Hospital Code. The Factory Insurance Association engineers have agreed to go over our plans and inform us just what protection is needed in order that we may be covered by them. In order to obtain the most economical and satisfactory solution to the fire protection problem, the aid of James E. Harris, Hospital President, who has been in the insurance field all his life, has been enlisted.

Sewer System: Since the entire hospital plumbing system depends on the proper sewer facilities and since the architects must have accurate knowledge of the sewer system to complete the plumbing phase in the drawings, all matters pertaining to the sewer line and system are being actively followed through at this time by the Building Committee.

Hospital Site: The sign designating the hospital site is now erected on that site, through the courtesy of Fairless Steel Co., Morrisville.

Certificate of Solicitation: Present certificate expired June 4th. Decision was made to immediately renew due to the fact that places of employment have set up in their indoctranation program a system including hospital deduction.

Robert Vansant presided at the meeting in the high school building, here, with only one absentee, Harry West.

The directors, under "school plant," heard report that all work on grading and seeding on the additional land, formerly part of the Bowman tract, is completed.

The board authorized purchase of gang mowers, and of new curtains for the stage in the high school auditorium.

Also authorized was the employment of an individual to plan the engineering work for playground at Trevose. Advertising of bids for a second well on the high school site, Street road, was authorized. One well was dug some time ago, but more water is necessary it was pointed out.

The architect reported working drawings on the high school are about 20 per cent completed.

Three teachers were elected: James Fischer, of Boiling Springs, as commercial teacher in the high school; Mrs. Beverly Whitney, Andalusia, returning to the high school after absence of a year; John Ware, of York, as an elementary teacher.

Census enumerators will begin their task on June 16th. Two teachers will care for this work.

The board adopted the school calendar for the coming term, presented by superintendent William Shellenberger. It also accepted proposal of F. A. Simons Bros. for furnishing coal. All bills were ordered paid.

P. T. A. AWARDS TO PUPILS

At Jefferson avenue school this morning a number of awards were made. Among them were the following from Bristol Parent-Teacher Association: Spelling, Nancy Bigelow and Joyce White, $5 each; penmanship, Judith Vandegrift, $5.

The shoot will consist of practice, Lewis class, and deadmark.

All shooters are invited, and refreshments will be served.

Chairman of the trap committee is George Detro.

Election Conducted For Youth Center of Newtown

NEWTOWN, June 12 — Robert Austin was elected president of Neshaminy Valley Youth Center at the annual meeting in the center Monday evening.

George Carleton was named first vice-president; Stanley B. Sutton, Jr., second vice-president; Mrs Helen Randle, secretary; Raymond Goodnoe, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are: Mrs. Clarence Krewson, Mrs. Helen Randle, Mrs. Leroy Nixon, Mrs. Kent Dickinson, Mrs David K. Rishell, Jr., Mrs. George Adams, Dr. A. J. Strathie, Dr. Raymond Hennessy, Lawrence Hennessy, Mrs. Roland W. Porter, George Carleton, Russell Johnson, Harry Shields, Robert Austin, Mrs. Robert Cooke, George Otto, James Tempest, Raymond Goodnoe, Mrs. William S. Kenderdine. The directors represent various organizations and the community at large.

Hugh Chronister, George School, will serve as director for the two summer months, starting July 1st.

A hiring committee was named to screen candidates for a permanent director during the summer: Forrest Bliem, chairman; Mrs. David K. Rishell, Mrs. Clarence Krewson and Dr. A. J. Strathie. A committee on equipment, James Tempest and Mrs. Helen Randle, will work with Mr. Chronister regarding needs for the summer program.

It was reported that about $700 has been realized thus far in the annual membership drive, with still a large number of persons to be called upon.

RECEIVES DEAN'S AWARD

Miss Regina J. Cottrell, Eddington, who graduated from the school of nursing, Woman's Medical Hospital of Penna., in Phila., Saturday, received the dean's award for having attained the highest scholastic standing in her class for three years. Miss Cottrell is a graduate of Bensalem high school, class of 1949. She was president of her class during her junior and senior year at the nursing school, and as such presented the class gift of $100 bond to Dr. Marion Fay, dean.

TERCHON POST WINS THIRD STRAIGHT

A single by Joe Roe in the last half of the seventh inning gave the Vets the winning run in a hard fought game with the Lewis Lodge at Memorial field last evening. The final score being seven to six.

Joe Steinbrum with four for four and Joe Roe with three for four led the Vets while E. Bragg with two for three and Walt Keys with two for four led the losers.

Henry Kornstedt who started for the Vets and pitched steady ball for five innings was relieved by Dick VanAken in the sixth and Dick was credited with his second straight win.

Delhaas Faculty Plans for Summer

town, North Carolina. Mrs. Doris Troiano intends to see part of Canada. Bernard Clarke will also make a trip to New England.

Quite a few of the teachers are continuing work on master's or doctor's degrees. These include: Sidney Oppenheimer, who will also be married during the summer; Berkley Ellis, who will attend Temple University after duty with the Army Reserve Corps at Camp Pickett, Virginia; John Antoni, another summer bridegroom who will continue study at Temple; Joseph Petrillock, studying for a doctorate in art at Penn State; Sarah Cherry, going to Penn State to begin work on a master's in music; Stanley Dick, studying at New York University; Thomas Jenkins, training for his doctorate at Penn State; Rosemarie Miles, attending Temple classes with a trip to Canada before the summer ends; Lloyd Johnson, another Penn State graduate student; Betty Kelian, completing work for a master's at Temple; and Kenneth Harrold, continuing graduate work.

Walter Miller, regional superintendent, is on a twelve-month contract and will be on duty at Delhaas all summer. The same applies to Miss Edna Pennypacker, guidance counselor, except for a motor trip to Mexico. Louis Acker will take summer employment and spend ten days in Canada. Miss Ivy Foley, after helping with school enumeration, will go to her cottage in the Poconos. J. E. Sparks and Irene Kochera will take summer jobs in the Bristol area. James Ritter will continue with employment for the school district. Malcolm Macfarlan will join the Navy for a cruise to Texas and will seek the cool comfort of the Poconos afterward.

Several of the faculty will work at being housewives. Mrs. Betty Gaskill, who is resigning to spend more time with her baby, will include a trip to the shore in her summer plans. Mrs. Dorothy Bixler and Mrs. Barbara Selman will remain in Bristol and Croydon, respectively.

Come September and the reopening of the school term, the faculty of Delhaas High School will be refreshed with eagerness after a three-month broadening of interests through travel, education and meeting other people.

Back To Tweed and Burr With Ike!

pute. The truth is that the Eisenhower spokesmen have elected to brazen the matter out and pretend that it is commendable instead of corrupt to introduce large numbers of Democratic votes into what ought to be a strictly in-the-party job for the Republicans—that of choosing its national delegates, and thereby its candidate for president.

Injection of the Democrats into Republican internal affairs, as a desperate effort to help along the floundering Eisenhower candidacy, is of course impossible in a great many states. Loopholes of this type were closed long ago by believers in clean, fair elections, so far as most of the states are concerned.

However, in a number of other states, by a variety of expedients, the Eisenhower camp has succeeded in massing an array of Democrats against the pro-Taft rank and file of the Republican party.

Two instances are sufficient to prove the point. One of the examples is that of Texas, where a deliberate publicity campaign was conducted to show the Democrats of that state that they could sign a "loyalty pledge" to the Republican Party without being legally bound by it; and second, that they could vote in the Republican precinct conventions for a Republican nominee, in the Democratic conventions for a Democratic nominee, and then next fall vote for whichever candidate they choose.

As a result, hordes of so-called "Republicans" poured out in precincts which never say more than a handful of Republican votes in history, and steam rollered through a slate of delegates which the Texas Republican State Committee and the Texas courts have declined to recognize.

The other example is that of New Jersey. Official records prove that the pro-Eisenhower state administration there found, and made abundant use of, a crack in the law whereby thousands of Democrats were able to vote in the Republican primary.

New Jersey has had a special provision on its statute books by which a would-be voter at the primaries could submit an affidavit of not having voted in a primary for two years, and thereupon receive and cast whichever party's ballot he wished, regardless of how he had been registered previously.

Normally only slight use has been made of such procedure, since the larger number of those interested in primaries vote in them at less than two-year intervals.

But the New Jersey record shows that at the spring primary, with a total of 127,276 voting Republican and 30,643 persons voting Democrat, no fewer than 63,200 persons signed these special affidavits.

Since the Democratic primary attracted scant attention, and since those who had previously been registered Republican needed no affidavit to obtain a Republican ballot, it is perfectly obvious that by far the greater part of the affidavits were used to permit Democratic voters to cast Republican party primary ballots.

On the face of the figures, somewhere upwards of half of the votes cast in the Republican primary actually were cast by Democrats.

As noted above, there is current today an active effort not only to apologize for this indefensible practice, but to try to whitewash it into something commendatory to Eisenhower — to try to prove that it shows his "vast appeal".

To cite one example among many, the Evening Bulletin in Philadelphia has editorialized and cartooned on the point that "the expressed will of the voters shall be heeded."

But with all deference to the Evening Bulletin, it hasn't a leg to stand on in this argument. It can search all the exponents of political science, all the students of electoral practice, read the works of Bryce and Beard and Root and all the other analysts who guided the American people into higher concepts of election laws, review the trials and verdicts and devisions of all the corrupt-practice prosecutions ever held, and find never a single competent voice raised on behalf of the proposition that one party shall have the right to dictate its opposing party's nominations.

Naturally, the pro-Eisenhower element argues that the appearance of the Democrats in Republican meetings, waving Eisenhower banners and wearing "I Like Ike" buttons, proves that the general is vastly popular with the Democratic voters.

It proves nothing of the sort. President Truman himself set the pace for butting into the Republican nomination, and a good many thousand words have been expended trying to reveal what the President really meant when he showed his preference for General Eisenhower.

At any event, the entry of the Democrats in the Republican primaries and conventions was at the direct invitation of the Eisenhower faction, backed up by vast publicity drives, and motivated by reasons which cannot stand examination.

It could easily be that the Democratic high command, having had painful experience with the fighting ability of Senator Taft, has decided to try to stop him at all costs before the election. It might be that the Administration's long opportunity to study from the inside the record and activities of General Eisenhower has given New Deal strategists assurance that they would be able to "blow him out of the water" once he is nominated, and thereby win re-election hands down.

At any event, the attempt of the Democrats to dictate the Republican nomination is mischievous, malicious and wholly subversive of all principles of good public conduct.

Nothing could be more disastrous, in the long run, for the cause of self-government and ethical political management than for it to be tolerated that one party picks the other party's nominees!

Penfield and Belardley Residents Complain of Drainage Conditions

to number their houses and to put up street signs. The same sort of service will be made available to Margo Gardens, Winder Village, and Bath Manor on the same basis.

Local drivers who daily encounter difficulty in moving on to Route 13 from Green Lane will be pleased to learn that the commissioners have received the permit to install traffic lights at that intersection. A similar request for lights in Edgely has been refused for a second time, but efforts will be continued to secure such a light.

While on the subject of traffic problems, certain citizens of Belardleyville asked that a stop sign be placed in their circle in an attempt to slow speeders who endanger children playing in the area. This will be looked into, the commissioners stated.

Mr. Lawton, of the U. S. Steel Co. appeared briefly to invite the commissioners on a tour of the Fairless plant next Monday evening.

The commissioners were asked to attend a hearing this afternoon, in Edgely Fire Co. station, on the matter of establishing school boundary lines between Bristol and Falls townships and Tullytown borough.

A letter from Bristol Township Civic Association requested that extra help be provided for the assessors, who, because of part-time work, cannot give the necessary time and attention to making sure complete assessments be made in order to avoid extreme tax losses.

A motion was passed to the effect that no charge be made to non-profit organizations seeking permits to hold carnivals. With this on record, the board approved the refunding of $10 to the Fergusonville community center, which had previously paid for such a permit.

Elwood Britton presented a variety of bills, payment for which was approved. Robert Cameron made his treasurer's report. The police report stated that fines paid to the township in May amounted to $1,050 and that those made to the state came to $410. There were 21 fines for speeding, 15 for overweight trucks, and 14 for passing stop signs. Twelve accidents were investigated, 816 radio calls were made, and 4,130 miles were traveled in the police car.

It was recommended that the proper authority investigate the wiring at a trailer camp in Croydon, where it had been observed that the electrical outlets are obviously defective.

Mr. Erwin was given authority to make an estimate of the cost of drawing a street map of the entire township, a project which will be sorely needed soon, to make house numbering uniform throughout the district.

Eugene Stutz, in charge of township roads, received approval to add two men to his highway crew to aid him in grass-cutting and in road work.

Bristol Township Schools To Give Promotion Certificates

Both ninth and tenth grade pupils of Delhaas High school will receive certificates of promotion at the annual promotion exercises, to be held in the open-air auditorium on the school grounds tomorrow afternoon.

The tenth-graders completed the term on Tuesday, but the seventh, eighth and ninth graders will have classes until tomorrow. Immediately after lunch tomorrow the annual variety-faculty baseball game will be held in front of the entire student body.

About 2.30 in the afternoon, at exercises, American Legion awards to eighth graders, the Knight award to a ninth grader, and the P. T. A. trophies to the outstanding boy and girl in 10th grade will be made. Following these presentations, certificates of promotion will be given to the ninth and 10th grade class presidents, who will deliver the certificates to homeroom teachers for distribution to the pupils.

After the other classes have departed, seventh graders will have their own ball game later in the afternoon.

Meeting was called to order by president, Mrs. Everett Forestal. Flowers were sent to a hospitalized member, Mrs. Michael Cirolli.

Play-ground committee includes: Mrs. John Kuhn, Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. William Harth, Mrs. Ralph Hart, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Mrs. Stanley Carlen, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Walter Strouse and Miss Margaret Fanghnan.

Motion was passed to donate $25 towards fire truck fund of the Tullytown Fire Co.

Election of officers took place: President, Mrs. Elwood Forahen; vice-president, Mrs. William Swangler; secretary, Mrs. John Walterick; treasurer, Mrs. Edward Paolella.

The League presented Mrs. Forestal, retiring president, with an engraved cigarette lighter; and Mrs. George Colville, who is leaving Tullytown school this year, with a Italian relish dish.

It was decided to hold a pie and cake sale, July 18th at one p. m., with the following in charge: Mrs. C. Hammer, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Stanley Carlen, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Mrs. Andrew Schaffer and Mrs. Everett Forestal.

There will be a "doggie" roast, August 12th on the lawn of Mrs. Walter Strouse's home.

New sick committee includes: Mrs. William Swangler and Mrs. John Walterick; Membership committee, Mrs. John Kuhn and Mrs. Wilma Holley.

It was decided to send all hospitalized children of Tullytown school "sunshine" baskets amounting to $1.

September card party will be held on the 6th, the following committee in charge: Mrs. William Swangler, Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. Esther Pirolli, Mrs. Lewis Green, Mrs. Walter Strouse and Mrs. Everett Forestal.

Committee to revise by-laws, includes: Mrs. John Walterick, Mrs. William Swangler, Mrs. Helen Nichols and Mrs. Edward Foraher.

Games were played, with prizes awarded.

Bloodmobile to Visit Philco Plant in Croydon

Mrs. Dean Weidner, Bristol district blood chairman, American Red Cross, announces a bloodmobile visit to be held at the Philco Corp. plant in Croydon. This visit, which will be for the employees, will be held on Tuesday, June 17, from 10 to 3:30. Fred Marcell, personnel manager, and his co-chairman in the Philco blood donor program, Miss Gwendolyn Adams, are recruiting the donors and planning the visit.

Daumont Kusma, Philco plant manager, said, "There is such great enthusiasm among the men that we are expecting a record-breaking visit. Our people have always co-operated in the past, and now they are even more anxious to do so. Our fighting men need blood, and we are going to try and help them get it."

Thirty-Two Firemen Are Given Diplomas

municipal building with the fire committee acting as hosts.

Burgess Hetherington told the group it was a pleasure for him to attend "this the first graduation of a fire school of this department." He said that those taking the course, the instructor and the fire committee "deserve the thanks of the community." He mentioned that the fire equipment, now in service for a number of years, "is old." "But it is not the equipment," he said, "it is the men who man the equipment." He thanked Cowan, a fire marshal at the Rohm & Haas plant, for his untiring efforts given gratuitously. He praised Chief Clifford Hagerman.

Joseph Ferry, chairman of fire committee, expressed his appreciation for what had been accomplished, thanking Cowan, the men and the committee which he heads. He presented the other members of the committee, S Joseph Aita, II., Joseph DeLissio, Thomas Gosline, Dennis J. Roche and Michale Spinelli.

Aita, addressing the group, thanked Cowan for the time he had devoted to the work and commended those taking the course. He suggested that "this be the beginning of a real program of extensive education." He said that Cowan has had a great practical experience and that he is a very important arm of the safety program at the Rohm & Haas plant. Aita made the suggestion that perhaps in the fall and winter season visitations could be arranged to industrial plants in the area, so as to acquaint the firemen with some of the conditions they would be called upon to face should fire occur in these plants. "You should know the physical surroundings," He also said that he thought the community should also be educated to the hazards of fire. Aita, likewise, praised Chief Hagerman for the time and effort he devotes to his duties.

Cowan was then presented with the lighter and William B. Downing presented Cowan with the typewriter.

The diplomas, signed by Cowan, Chief Hagerman and members of the fire committee, were presented by Cowan and Hagerman to each man.

Cowan was profuse in thanking the men for the fine interest and cooperation. He said that he had had no intention of receiving any compensation but had done the job as a civic interest project. He said he hoped that this school was only the beginning and that others would follow.

Raymond Tomlinson, one of the graduates, said: "I have been a member of this department for 17 years and this is the first time an affair of this kind has ever been given. The men certainly appreciate it." Upon his motion the fire committee was given a rising vote of thanks.

Those receiving the diplomas were:

William Bennett, Alfred Bobbs, Robert Bowe, Wayne Buck, Joseph Cole, Raymond Coombs, James Corning, Joseph Corning.

Paul Crowley, David Downing, William M. Downing, Jasper Favorosa, Vito Favorosa, Walter Garretson, Clifford Hagerman, Jr.

Clifford Hagerman, Sr., Robert D. Harman, Ralph Hineline, Charles Jones, Ramo Kline.

Leo Patterson, Jack Price, Robert E. Sutton, Raymond A. Tomlinson, Walter VanDorn, Charles Weik, Robert McHugh.

Menu: Tomato juice, baked Virginia ham, potato salad, cooked mixed vegetable salad, deviled eggs, celery, olives, pickles, radishes, lettuce, tomato slices, Russian dressing, rolls, butter, mints, homemade layer cake, ice cream, coffee.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Clinging to The Formula

WASHINGTON, June 12—

It is interesting to note that of the five aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination only one stands for anything except the New Deal and Fair Deal policies. That one — Senator Russell, of Georgia—strongly opposes Mr. Truman's so-called civil-rights program but otherwise is mostly in line with the Administration.

—o—

However, because he is from the South, Senator Russell is the least likely to be nominated. For the rest—Harriman, Kefauver, Stevenson and Barkley—they are all of a pattern, completely New Deal and Fairl Deal. And say so. What this means is that the millions of Democrats who are—and have been for a long time—unhappy about the socialistic direction in which the party has been headed for nearly twenty years; who are deeply distrubed by the appalling condition of the national finances; who are sickened by the wide-spread corruption that has been revealed in the Truman Administration, again are going to have no choice in November except to stay home or vote for the Republican candidates.

—o—

Actually, not all of the Democratic availables, themselves sincerely believe in the Roosevelt-Truman policies. Some of them have a deep distrust of the direction in which they are being carried and a cordial distaste for part of the record which they have helped build. Nevertheless, every one of these aspirants is prepared to stand on a platform which will laud both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations to the limit; insist that they have been without flaw; minimize and excuse the revealed graft and corruption; ignore the fact that the Federal finances are dangerously out of control; indorse policies which will enhance the already appallingly swollen Federal pay roll, increase the mounting costs of an unprecedentedly inefficient Federal bureaucracy; open wider and wider the Treasury spigots from which the people's money has been pouring.

—o—

The reason these normally upright gentlemen are prepared to accept such a platform, which they can only defend by ignoring the facts and denouncing those who present them, is because of their political aspirations. They are hooked. There is no way for them to gain the presidential or vice presidential nomination or to hold their place in the Democratic party except by following the pattern of the cocky Mr. Truman, whose party loyalty seems more intense and undiscriminating than that of any previous White House occupant. He has been remarkably open in making it clear that no Democratic candidate could be so inferior; no Democratic record so bad, and no platform so unsound as to lose his support.

—o—

And the reverse of that is true of Mr. Truman regarding Republican candidates and platforms. Not many Democrats, even in public life, are willing to go that far. In the South many stanch party men have made it plain they will revolt of the candidate and the platform are genuinely offensive to them. But the present aspirants for the presidential nomination (excepting Senator Russell) have no scruples about taking the dose again, though developments of the last four years obviously have made it more obnoxious than before. But there just isn't anything for them to do save to swallow the whole nauseous mess. They have no alternative.

—o—

The truth is Democratic politicians everywhere—except in the South—are grimly holding on to the formula with which they have been victorious in the last four elections — and which they somewhat shakly hope will pull them through once more. The basis of this formula is the gigantic Federal job-holding machine to which are now attached more than 2,000,000 jobholders. This is a tremendous voting force potent in nearly every state. To it must be added the vote of organized labor, the bosses of which have become dominant in the Democratic party nationally and are close personally and politically to the President.

—o—

Other component parts of the formula are the Negro vote in the pivotal states of the North and Middle West and the farmers whose subsidy demands have been so freely granted as to cause some farm leaders, such as Allan B. Kline, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, recently to express the view that it had been overdone and was no longer in the interest of either the farmers or the country. There must also be added the professional "liberals" of the A.D.A. At any rate, that is the formula to which the Democratic aspirants cling. It almost failed them in 1948 and few contend the party has not been weakened since in all these special groups as well as with the people as a whole. Nevertheless, there is nothing to do but cling to the formula—and clinging to it they certainly are. Of course, the real Democratic hope this time is that the Republicans will kick away the opportunity for such victory in their convention next month. That might happen.

Agricultural "Lab" and Plantings To Be Visited

NEWTOWN, June 12—Members of Bucks Co. Natural Science Association will participate in a field trip, June 21st, under leadership of Stevenson Fletcher. Cars will meet at the home of Miss Julia Balderston, 116 N. Lincoln avenue, at 9.30 a. m. Persons desiring transportation may contact Miss Balderston.

The laboratory of Edwin Harrington, agricultural chemist at Carversville, will be visited, as will the home and exterior plantings of James A. Michener, Tinicum, lately returned from Japan. Box luncheon will be enjoyed there.

The walled cemetery, where Edward Marshall, one of the men who took "The Indian Walk" is interred, will also be visited.

In case of rain, the trip will be cancelled.

Nathan Hale was hanged as a spy by the British in Sept., 1776.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

BIG, COMPLETE FARMERS' MARKET, AUCTION TO OPEN IN BRISTOL

Look once! It makes soon a Dutch Farmers' Market and Auction on Route 413, half way between the Lincoln Highway and the Bristol Pike.

Yes, on Friday, June 20, the Bristol Farmers Market Market and Auction will have a gala opening, complete with ribbon cutting, searchlights, band and plenty of notables. This real Pennsylvania Dutch style Farmers' Market and Auction will bring you the greatest assortment of merchandise ever seen in this community under one roof. In fact everything you eat, wear or use will be sold at prices you can't duplicate elsewhere.

Farmers' Markets can be found all over Pennsylvania. Three of the largest are in Quakertown, Gilbertsville and Ephrata—all deep in the Pennsylvania Dutch territory. In the very beginning, the Farmers' Markets were just exactly that—a market place where farmers and growers brought the things they produced and offered them direct to the housewives of the community. Then, the butcher and the baker and the grocer decided that a spot alongside the busy farm stalls would be a good place to sell lamb-chops, and upside-down cakes and canned goods.

Later, when store keepers other than food vendors took space, the markets became complete as we know them today. Now, there's clothing of all types, shoes, drugs, and even furniture sold at these sales.

First Time in this Area

For years the Farmers' Markets have been supplying the needs of the people in Central and Western Pennsylvania and now, for the first time, a real Pennsylvania Dutch style Farmers' Market will be just a few short minutes from your door.

Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction will be open on Fridays from noon till midnight. When the doors open at noon an enormous display of fresh fruits and vegetables from nearby farms and from all over the country, as well as groceries and other goods will be spread before you awaiting your selection. Many local farmers will be selling their own produce and nobody can undersell the man who raises his own produce.

Then, there will be the wonderfully quaint stands that sell cheeses from all over the world, specializing in Lancaster County Dutch cheeses, Swiss, sharp and the innumerable other varieties for which the Pennsylvania Dutch are famous.

The butchers will also supply an enormous display of Dutch style fresh and smoked meats, including that mouth-watering Hickory-smoked ham, bacon, turkeys and dried beef, along with a full display of other meats prepared in that "home-style" way that is almost a lost art today.

Fresh cut poultry and eggs will be in abundance. And don't fail to shop at the bakery stands. Fresh baked "Shoo-Fly Pie," "Fastnachts" (Pennsylvania Dutch specialties), pies, cakes and bread will fill the gleaming clean shelves. You will even see these goodies baked right before your eyes, for one baker has installed his oven right in the Market and will be baking during market day.

For canned goods, frozen foods and staples, the huge 10,000 sq. ft. self service grocery will be bulging with supplies for your pantry at tremendous savings.

A Shopper's Paradise

As you walk down the aisle of this bargain shopper's paradise you will see stands displaying luggage and leather goods, lingerie, dresses and coats, electrical appliances, and even stocks and bonds will be sold. There will be a drug store, and plumbing and heating shops. You will be able to buy records, lamps and nationally advertised yard goods, all at reduced prices.

There will be shoe stores, and shops featuring ladies' blouses, nylons, carpets and furniture. You will be able to pause for a minute to refresh with a soda or stop at a stand for waffles or doughnuts and coffee. Or you may prefer a snack of french fries, candied apples, custards or cotton candy.

In fact, you will find everything you use, wear or eat at Bristol Farmers' Market and Auction.

4 Big Auctions

There will be three auctions running simultaneously every Friday afternoon and evening, where you can buy anything from a broom, an electrical appliance to a diamond ring. All the auctioned merchandise is brand new and guaranteed.

Also a public auction will be held on Friday afternoons by a licensed auctioneer who will sell anything you wish him to auction off. Just call Bristol 2773 or bring the goods to the market office any day between 9:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. and have it registered. The commission is 15%.

Each Shop Individually Owned

This sounds big, doesn't it? But it is not big business because farmers and small shop keepers are what make it. The bakery shops, poultry stalls, meat stands, the clothing and tie stands—they're all small business. The owners of the Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction are not selling a single item on the property. They own none of the stands. But the management does keep an eye on things and they see things from the customer's point of view. It is one of the few shopping centers where the management is keeping an eye on the customer's interest instead of the cash register. It makes quite a difference. That's why you'll see signs through the market building stating "MONEY BACK IF NOT SATISFIED." We mean it. We guarantee it. We want our customers to come back and tell their neighbors about us. We at the Bristol Farmers' Market & Auction believe that shopping for the family needs should be a happy, pleasant adventure, so we have tried to arrange things that way.

Towards this end the Market has been decorated with authentic Pennsylvania Dutch "Hex" signs and other decor. You will note that the merchants are pleasant and courteous. Some are even comedians—the auctioneers for instance.

There will be ample free illuminated parking space—over 30 acres. You will be able to do your entire week's shopping under one roof and enjoy every minute of it. Besides, you will save money.

The Bristol Farmers' Market and Auction management have extended an invitation to all churches, veterans' organizations, Parents-Teachers' Associations and other non-profit groups to hold bake sales on market days free of cost to them.

Mrs. Camilla Re-Elected Pres't, Newtown Auxiliary

NEWTOWN, June 12 — Mrs. Joseph Camilla was re-elected President of the American Legion Auxiliary, Morell Smith Post 440, at the meeting held Monday evening at the Post Home.

Mrs. David Balderston was elected vice president, Mrs. Mary Price, recording secretary, Mrs. Edward Batemen, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall, treasurer, Mrs. Harvey Gray, sergeant at arms, Mrs. Edward R. Barnsley, Chaplain, Mrs. Walter Kench, historian, Mrs. Harold Sams, color bearer.

Installation of officers will feature the September meeting of the Auxiliary.

The annual picnic for the Juniors and the Ladies Auxiliary and their families will be held Monday evening, July 14th at 6:30 p. m. at Neely's Mills, Mrs. David Balderston, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Mrs. Camilla, President was appointed a delegate to attend the State Convention of American Legion Auxiliaries to be held in Philadelphia in August, with Mrs. David Balderston, alternate.

Mrs. Harry Flagg, Chairman of the Committee on Americanism gave a most interesting report on the history and meaning of the Flag and also of the sale of poppies for Memorial Day, which was most successful, the Juniors participating in most of the selling.

The refreshment committee for the meeting was Mrs. Walter Kench and Miss Alice Weasner.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA---

All public, private and parochial schools in the Bristol area are invited to send news items for publication in this column which appears frequently.

Bristol Township Elementary Schools

Croydon School

Mrs. Lloyd Johnson will attend Mansfield State Teachers College during the summer session.

The outdoor music festival, under the direction of Mrs. A. Erna McKevitt, was held on school grounds on Friday. Games, singing, dancing, and pantomime were enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were served to all by the Room Mothers group.

The entire faculty of Croydon school gathered in Mrs. Devine's room after school recently for a deliciously prepared supper as a "last-get-together" social event of the term.

Maple Shade

Mrs. Mary Kates, teacher of third grade, plans to attend the regular session of summer school at West Chester Teachers College. She will later attend the post session at Shippensburg.

John Beck, teacher of fifth grade, will attend a workshop session at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College this summer.

The Room Mothers group of Maple Shade and Newportville school entertained Monday evening at dinner in honor of Miss Margaret Engelke and Mr. Wesley Wielgolasky. The affair was held in Delhaas Home Economics room which had been beautifully decorated with a large white wedding bell for Miss Engelke and a "good-luck" center piece for Mr. Wielgolasky who has resigned for health reasons.

Both were given leather traveling clocks as presents from the group.

Invited guests included Supervisors, members of both faculties, and room mothers.

In addition, the Mothers' group presented China table service and silverware for use when needed at the Newportville and Maple Shade schools during social affairs.

Maple Shade's music festival was held on the school playground on Monday, June 9th.

Many parents were present to enjoy the singing, square-dancing and music of the different grades.

Kindergarten and Community Building

On the 3rd of June, the boys and girls of the first and second grades of the Kindergarten and Community buildings entertained their parents and friends with an informal outdoor musical program.

The first grade children began the program with pantomime actions of the story of a prince and princess who were lost in the woods. Youngsters were star fairies, rabbits, and squirrels. They danced around the prince and princess. Finally a group of children (townspeople) came upon the scene to awaken all and there was frolicing and dancing.

The first grade children also demonstrated some of their rhythmic activities such as marching, swinging, boating and see-sawing.

Second grades began their portion of the program with a demonstration of rhythm sticks played to "The Syncopated Clock" an outgrowth of the study of clocks. Next came the rhythm band playing "On the Mall", and "Pop Goes the Weasel."

The last portion was devoted to second grades singing and playing the following nursery rhymes, "Sing a Song of Sixpence", "Did You Ever See a Lassie", "The Thread Follows the Needle", "Farmer in the Dell", "Humpty Dumpty", "Little Bo-Peep", "Three Little Kittens", and "Here We Go Loobly-Loo".

Edgely Intermediate

The fifth grade at Edgely recently gave a play "The Proud Princess" for their "neighbors", the fourth graders.

Today 4th grades closed the African Unit. Mrs. Wallin showed some Congo souvenirs she had from her former teaching experiences in Africa. All the children were served a Congo dinner.

The outdoor festival, under the direction of Mrs. McKevitt, was held on the afternoon of June 5th. Songs, games, and dances were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Cora Goldweber and Mr. George Mukalian will attend Temple University for regular summer session.

Mrs. Theodore Wallin and Mrs. Margaret Beck, teachers at Edgely school, will attend a workshop session at East Stroudsburg Teachers College during the summer.

LIPSTICK STAINS

NEW YORK, (INS) — Lipstick stains, which usually show on on the best dinner napkins, aren't too hard to remove if you use glycerine on the smears. Soften the lipstick stain with the glycerine for a while. Then wash it out in warm soapsuds.

racks-like buildings that house military brain of the Atlantic liance in Europe. The Supreme adquarters, Allied Powers, Eu- pe, is assuming more of a mili- y character than it has known r nearly a year now. No longer it a center of great political ac- tion. Gone is the glare of the ublicity that marked it as the oming ground of a leading presi- ntial candidate.

Prominent personalities visiting aris no longer feel their prestige stake unless they motor out the estern auto route to Roquen- ort. Seeing General Dwight D. isenhower in Paris had become most a matter of class distinction. ou were slipping professionally if ou had not been received by him.

Nor do political considerations ominate any longer the attitude nd activities of the "brass" at HAPE. "Ike" Ridgway is not unning for President.

SHAPE is becoming a much less xciting place than it was, especial- y for the higher echelon of Amer- an officers. For the European ivilian, however, it is showing a arked improvement in morale. efore than a few of the European fficers attached to SHAPE felt hat the concentration of interest n Ike's political future was hav- ng a demoralizing effect on the rganization.

This was not entirely Gen. Eisen- ower's fault. It was a situation hat was bound to develop when he et his hat be tossed into the presi- ential ring. Ike recognized it uickly, and this was one of the easons he announced publicly that e could not continue to play two oles at the same time. But it was lmost inevitable, if not intention- l, that SHAPE should assume the haracteristics of a political cam- aign headquarters. It is rapidly ssuming now the single function or which it was created—the di- ection of the military program for uilding up the defenses of West- rn Europe.

General Matthew B. Ridgway as lost no time in making clear hat his sole concern as supreme ommander is the efficient func- ioning of the organization. The op- ortunity to show what kind of a ew broom he intended to be came uickly. On the Saturday morning ha, he turned up for work after he transfer of command, he called or an administrative report. He as informed that the British olonel handling the report had eft for his customary week-end. en. Ridgway let it be known in no nmistakable terms that long week- nds for SHAPE officers did not onform to his conception of how o implement the program of try- ng to make Western Europe de- ensible in the shortest possible ime.

Ridgway himself works not only six days per week, but frequently a good part of the seventh as well. He is not working his new staff that hard, but he does expect them to put in half a day on Saturday.

There is a refreshing air about Ridgway. He has much the same gift for turning on the charm and for inspiring idolization among those who work closely with him that Eisenhower possesses.

When I heard his qualities as a soldier, statesman and likeable human being lauded by one of his associates, it had the familiar ring of the tributes Ike's aides pay him. Partisans of each claim a premium on the sincerity of their respective hero. Both men certainly possess a glowing personality.

Eisenhower, before he left Paris, seemed to be exuding more and more the aura of a man of destiny. He had a tendency to talk in terms of spiritual values. Ridgway shows no signs of being aware that he is an historical figure. He gives the impression of a man of great vitality, with a flair for leadership and a determination to do his job well, whatever it may be.

There is some question in the minds of Europeans about the extent of Ridgway's responsibility for the situation that developed in the Korean war prisoner camps. It is recognized now that it was a mistake to maintain compounds so big that the Communist prisoners could gain internal control of their camps. American war-time practice for handling prisoners is to limit the individual camps to 500 or 600 inmates, instead of the thousands that were herded together in such camps as the one at Kodje.

The explanation of Ridgway's officers is that it would have involved too much of a drain on manpower, at first, to guard the smaller camps. That seems to have been a field command decision, rather than one for which Ridgway was directly responsible.

One of the main problems confronting him as new supreme commander of the Allied forces in Europe is to overcome the reputation he has in the minds of the Europeans as a "hot-war" general. His transfer from Korea to Europe has aroused in the minds of many Europeans the fear that the United States Government may be anticipating another Korean-type conflict over here.

Ridgway is aware of this psychological handicap and he hopes to overcome it by publicity stressing at every opportunity that he is in Europe to save the peace and not to prepare for war. His pretty wife, "Penny," incidentally, promises to prove an invaluable asset to him winning the popular support of the Europeans, and especially the French. Her gay and glamorous smile is helping already to offset the Communist propaganda attempts to portray him as the monstrous "microbe" general of Korea.

Foresee "Proud New Title" for Philip

were already apparent in the arrangements she made for her father's funeral. She gave Philip the place of honor by putting him at the extreme right of the line formed by the Dukes of Edinburgh, Gloucester, Windsor and Kent in the funeral procession.

Philip will shortly be promoted from Lieutenant Commander in the Royal Navy to Admiral's rank, to save him embarrassment in carrying out his royal duties in the presence of senior officers of the services.

But intimates of the royal couple say that the democratic Philip, while agreeing to this promotion as a sensible arrangement in keeping with his navy service, has "stubbornly argued the Queen out of giving him a Field-Marshal's baton."

And when Elizabeth also suggested that he should have a high rank in the royal air force Philip reportedly spiked this appointment by insisting on "at least winning my wings first."

Philip will, after the coronation, begin taking private tuition in flying from one of the senior R. A. F. instructors at Cranwell, Britain's West Point of the air. Both Edward VIII and George VI earned their wings and were competent pilots.

Philip, as father of the heir to the throne, Prince Charles, will almost certainly be nominated one of the councillors of state in the new regency act. It is imperative that Parliament has authority to appoint a regent, who could, if the need ever arose, act on behalf of Prince Charles during his minority. Whether Parliament would agree to naming Philip as potential regent is however a matter for debate.

Britain's "First Gentleman," with a Queen-wife who dotes on him and with the public behind him, has before him the opportunity of molding the spirit of the new Elizabethan Age.

It has already become clear that he will not only emulate Victoria's consort, Prince Albert, by acting as permanent advisor and minister to the Queen, and influence the upbringing of the heir to the throne, but will play a full part in the formal business of the crown and in public work.

No one who has chatted with Philip, or who has attempted to calculate the mark he has made on English life in the space of the past four years, would make the mistake of writing off his abilities.

Although he does not actually possess the startling all around brilliance some admirers attribute to him, he has an extremely active, comprehensive and strong mind, with original and unconventional twists unusual in Princes.

But Philip is not a normal Prince. He is not lightly swayed and he is always demanding reasons and motives and details. His life as a junior naval officer sharpened his wits, enabled him to meet all sorts and all classes of men.

Philip, in fact, appears to be a perfect foil for his wife. Elizabeth was brought up in a narrow circle and taught to tread the path of sobriety and strictness. She is self-assured, intelligent and a wizard on constitutional law. But she knows little from personal experience about the world and its ways.

Philip can provide all the answers she needs.

Thus the young Queen is going to depend upon her husband and follow his judgment in many fields.

Said one distinguished authority on court affairs: "The truth is, although it may be disguised in words, we have not one young sovereign but two."

None who knows Philip believe that he aims at any power for himself. Neither is he expected, like Prince Albert, to "entirely sink his own individual existence in that of the Queen" in this modern age.

A close friend of the sailor-consort told International News Service that "Philip has no personal ambitions other than to have his wife go down in history as a great Queen."

This same friend explained that Philip "really prefers little jobs." He has sketched designs for an up-to-date naval uniform for the royal navy. Philip's idea is to retain the traditional characteristics but moderize the "square rig" uniform to make it more functional and comfortable. British seamen, for example, have to drag tight jumpers over their heads. Philip prefers a jumper with a zipper and slightly padded shoulders.

The Duke of Edinburgh is unorthodoxly qualified for some of his official positions. He is probably the only member of the royal family who has been good at the game of cricket — and thus more than qualified as President of the famous Marylebone Cricket Club — the ruling authority on British cricket.

His presidency of the national playing fields association, for which he has worked tirelessly to provide sports grounds for British youngsters, gains color from the fact that he turned out as a first-rate goalkeeper for naval soccer teams.

He has piloted his own yacht to victory at Cowes and is an enthusiastic and expert yachtsman. British yachtsmen are already looking forward to the part which they are confident the Queen and Philip will play in their sport.

Elizabeth frankly hates sailing but either for love, or because Philip converted her, now actively pursues it. Together they own the dragon-class "Bluebottle" and the smaller "Coweslip."

Both are ordinary members of the island sailing club at Cowes, where the atmosphere is young and carefree. They are also members of the royal yacht squadron, which nearby guards the old traditions. Yachtsmen feel that the royal couple, thanks to Philip, will bridge the gap between the new spirit of adventure and the old dignity.

The Queen's husband has studied the life and and the letters of Prince Albert. He has probed deeply into secret royal archives and is never likely to overstep the line in constitutional behavior.

But his new role as the "First Gentleman of the Land" isn't changing his easy-going personality.

Britain's savile row has frankly despaired of making a fashion plate of Philip. He continues to dress in a comfortable and even casual manner.

His most shocking "sartorial sin," of course, is going so frequently without a hat. What's more, to the horror of milliners, he sometimes gets the Queen of England to leave her hat behind. And that little fact, perhaps as much as anything, shows that as "King Consort," "Prince Consort," or by any other title, Philip is a man whose influence Britions will have to reckon with.

the mink coat scandals, the deep freeze gifts, the free trips to expensive Florida resorts. They have not forgotten the crooked dealers in influence who had free access to the White House. They have not forgotten the irregularities in the Commodity Credit Corporation at a cost of millions of dollars to the taxpayers.

"No one will forget the scandalous cheating on income taxes—the grafting fixers in the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Department of Justice.

"The Democratic Administration at Washington cannot escape the consequences of its arrogant disregard for all moral and ethical principles when the sordid story of bribery and corruption was revealed.

"I ask you to remember that these shocking betrayals of the public trust were not brought out into the open by any act of the Administration.

"On the contrary, the Administration put forth every effort to conceal and protect the unholy alliance between law violators and fixers in and out of government.

"An iron curtain of official secrecy was placed around the bribetakers, the influence peddlers, and all other cheaters who used public office to enrich themselves by crooked practices.

"Their disgraceful acts were hidden from the public until Congressional investigating committees turned the spotlight of publicity into the dark corners of crime and conspiracy.

"In my opinion the failure of the President to take prompt and drastic action to drive the crooks out of public office and bring them to the bar of justice was one of the most disgraceful affairs in American history.

"I do not say that any one political party has had a monopoly on wrongdoers. But I do say that whenever corruption was revealed in any administration prior to the New Deal and the Fair Deal, it was met with immediate and vigorous action for the protection of the people and their government.

"Only a Republican administration can restore the principles of common honesty to our government.

"I am convinced that the existence of the United States as a free Nation is threatened by the sugar-coated but deadly philosophy of an administration that has shown itself bankrupt in political morality, bankrupt in leadership and bankrupt in respect for the sanctity of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"More alarming than the issue of corruption is the extreme danger to which the American form of government is exposed by the constantly increasing concentration of power and authority at Washington.

"Such a course inevitably leads to Socialistic dictatorship. It destroys freedom of the individual. It robs the people of incentive and opportunity. It means restrictions upon personal liberty and regimentation under a planned and controlled economy.

"During the last twenty years the concentration of power at the Federal level has resulted in taxation which approaches the point of confiscation. It has resulted in continuous deficit financing, inflation and the most enormous National debt in all history.

"Twenty years ago, we spent less than $4 billion a year to operate the Federal Government. Now the Truman administration proposes to spend $85 billion in one fiscal year.

"Twenty years ago we had less than 600,000 Federal employees. Now we have more than 2,500,000 with a payroll of 10½ billion dollars a year.

"Today there are 1470 people employed in the Executive Office of the President. When Theodore Roosevelt was President, he had only 20 people in his offices and even Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the height of World War II, had less than 600.

"Twenty years ago the Federal government took 6 per cent of the people's earnings in taxes. Today the taxpayers of the Nation must give up about one-third of their wages and salaries and one-third of the income of all industry and business just to pay the cost of government.

"Twenty years ago the National debt was less than 20 billion dollars. Now it is almost $260 billion and it is being pushed higher and higher by unrestrained demands for more and bigger spending.

"Only a Republican administration can assure the continuance of government by law and not by men.

"The Republican Party in the 80th Congress proved that the budget can be balanced, not by just talking about it, but by adjusting expenditures to income. It was the first time the budget had been balanced in 17 years.

"The Republican Party in the 80th Congress cut proposed spending by $6 billion. By sane, sensible, economical Republican management the fiscal year 1948 was ended with a surplus of nearly $8½ billion and the National debt was reduced by $7 billion.

"In 1948 the Republican 80th Congress succeeded in over-riding President Truman's veto of tax reduction bills and cut individual income taxes by 4 billion, 800 million dollars a year, with most of the benefits going to taxpayers with incomes under $5000 a year. This was the first tax reduction in 20 years. More than 7 million citizens in the lower income brackets were removed completely from the tax rolls.

"The Republican Party has done these things and will do them again if we are strong and united for victory in November. We will win by fighting courageously for the principles to which the Republican Party is dedicated.

"We will win by presenting the issues honestly, fairly and clearly to the American people.

"We will win by exposing the dangers into which we have been led by New Deal waste and extravagance.

"We will win by offering a sound, sane, constructive Republican program by which we propose to build a better, happier, stronger America of freedom and opportunity."

GLASS WARNING

PHILADELPHIA — (INS)—Sunglasses used in night driving may reduce the glare on oncoming headlights, but they also might lead to injury or death of pedestrians. So says Edward P. Curran, of the Keystone Automobile Club, who warned that although dark glasses may shield a motorist's eyes, they cut down his view of the road ahead.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, June 12. —Every time congress attempts to slice some of the fat from defense appropriations, Pentagon officials both military and civilian, wail like banshees that another gun, another tank has been torn from the hands of our fighting men in Korea.

The argument is pure propaganda, as phony as it is immoral, and the admirals, generals and laybosses know it.

Pending in the senate is a proposed $2,500,000,000 cut in Mr. Truman's request appropriation of $52,400,000,000 for the 12 months beginning July 1. The proposal does not specify where the pruning is to be done; it merely reduces the overall defense check by that amount and tells the department to apply the scissors where they best fit the cloth.

The "guns for the boys in Korea" aria is, of course, the Pentagon's own propaganda dressing, designed for tawdry capitalization on the emotions of the American people. A goulish business, but we stoop low these days to chisel what we want.

Only 35 per cent of the total defense budget goes for weapon procurement. The rest is for salaries and administrative costs and the intent of congress is that the savings be sweated out of the obesity in this other 65 per cent.

With profound breast beating about the economies they have achieved in unification of the armed forces, the brass hats themselves told congress they had cut operating costs by $1,800,000,000. The budget, however, contains no reflection of such.

Instead, it ups the request for administrative funds by $900,000,000. To this, the gentlemen of the senate take exception. The overall discrepancy adds up to $2,700,000,000. They are willing to settle for $2,500,000,000 but the Pentagon powers resist even that.

To demonstrate the wantonness of the propaganda pitch, the congress actually could cut from the military budget more than ten times the proposed $2,500,000,000 and still not lose or even delay delivery of a single plane, gun, tank or anything else, needed either in Korea or Europe.

And if the Pentagon got every dollar it asks for between now and 1955, not another piece of fighting equipment above current production rates would find its way into the hands of the fighting men.

On the basis of present supplies, allocations of materials, and the production capacity of defense plants, it is physically impossible to increase the turn out take of military "hardware", and if it were possible, the military wouldn't do it. Development of new and better weapons is progressing too rapidly to freeze designs and go into all-out production.

The Pentagon's own figures prove that they ended the fiscal year last June 30 with $30,000,000,000 unspent, productive capacity of American industry having fallen that far short of meeting defense orders. This year the leftover will be $28,000,000,000, making a total of $58,000,000,000. As of June 30, 1953, the kitty will be close to $100,000,000,000.

The armed services, of course, use the argument that they need the billions to plan in advance for procurement; planes ordered today cannot be airborne, nor ships launched for three years. The argument is invalid because an authorization for the ordering of the equipment is all that is necessary, not the cash in hand.

Furthermore, it is somewhat obscure how a cut of $2,500,000,000 out of the budget for fiscal 1952-53 is going to rob the boys in Korea of any guns, tanks or ammunition in the next few months.

The joint congressional committee on internal revenue in a recent report recommended a cut in defense expenditures, not in the amount the senate proposes, but $5,400,000,000. They've studied the facts inside and out and they ought to know.

The Capitol at Harrisburg was dedicated in October, 1906.

FAIRLESS HILLS HAS FOUR SETS OF TWINS

Youngest, "Home-Grown," Are Seven-Weeks-Old Onaitis Children

OLDEST IS 10½ YEARS

FAIRLESS HILLS, June 12—This community can boast of four sets of twins — ranging in age from seven weeks to 10½ years.

The seven weeks old duo spend their time sleeping; the next oldest set, 2½ years, can get into more mischief than one would imagine; while school activities and play occupy the time of a set of girl twins, age 10 years; and a sister and brother of the age of 10½.

None of the four sets are identical twins, but least alike in appearance are Joanne and Suzanne Manns, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Manns, of Austin drive. Joanne, larger of the two, is a blonde, while Suzanne has dark hair. They were born in January, 1950. Mr. Manns is a general turn foreman in the blast furnace department at Fairless Works. The twins have two sisters and a brother, ranging from nine to 14 years, and the twins are their pets.

The baby twins are Thea and Terry Onaitis, seven-weeks old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Onaitis, Andover road. The twins were born after the Onaitis family moved here, and so are termed "home-grown". At birth they weighed 3 lbs. 13 oz., each. The father is employed in the work control department at Fairless Works, he moving here from Pittsburgh section.

The Zaner twins, Susan and Dianne, are 10 years old this month, and are fourth grade pupils at Fairless Hills school. Although both have freckles, Susan has blonde hair and Dianne, light brown. They are, needless to say, inseparable. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Zaner, Mr. Zaner being in the engineering section of Fairless Works. He had previously operated a water works plant in Florida. Another daughter, Andrea, 15, makes three girls in the household.

Linda and David Crooks, 10½, were born on their father's birthday anniversary, Nov. 24th. David is paying for a lawn mower by cutting his neighbors' lawns. Linda's interest mainly is sewing. The twins attend Fallsington School.

Mr. Crooks, employed by U. S. Steel Co. for five years, is supervisor of traffic at Fairless Works.

The New York Central Railroad opened to Albany in the fall of 1851.

PRE-JUNE MARRIAGE LICENSES NUMEROUS

Business Brisk in May in Anticipation of June Ceremonies

132 COUPLES APPLY

DOYLESTOWN, June 12 — Business became brisk in the Marriage License Bureau here just prior to June weddings. A total of 132 couples applied for such licenses during May, many of them planning to wed in June.

Of the 132 bridegrooms-to-be, only 18 were servicemen. Seven sailors and seven soldiers and four air force men applied. Practically all the servicemen were in the very young age bracket and married teen-age brides. No Marines were among the altar-bound servicemen.

Thirty of the brides were minors and needed parental consent while only 13 of the men needed consent. Divided into age groups, there were no men under 18; while there was one sixteen-year-old bride; and four who were 17. Three boys and four girls were 18; and five prospective bridegrooms and 11 prospective brides were 19. The twenty age group claimed five men and ten women.

Forty-two of the 264 applicants were going to the altar for the second time; there were no three-time applicants this month. Ten men and 18 women dissolved first marriages by divorce. There were eight widowers and six widows in the group.

The youngest applicant was a 16-year-old girl from Quakertown who wed a 19-year-old Sellersville boy. The youngest couple, both of whom were 18, came from Quakertown. The oldest couple came from New Britain. The bride was born in 1890; and her husband-to-be was born in 1884. There were no couples marrying this past month with great age differences.

Compared with last May, this May is ahead of the record. Last year there were 121 applications received in May. The total, however, cannot come up to May, 1950, when 144 applications were granted. A total of 460 licenses have been applied for in 1952.

COHASSET, Mass. — (INS) — A 65-year-old grandmother has made town history in Cohasset. Mrs. Helen Scripture is the first woman even to be elected a selectman. She campaigned without a platform and never said anything against her opponents, or anything controversial.
